Truman Winds-Up His Tour

President Takes A Parting Blast At Ike Version Of Isolationism

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (AP)—President Truman brought his whistle-stop campaign to a climax tonight with a charge that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has adopted "a new kind of isolationism."

"The old isolationism was to say that the United States was surrounded by an ocean moat that no enemy could cross," Truman said. "The new approach is to say: Yes, we are part of the world—but not if it costs more money."

Truman also said that Eisenhower, the Republican candidate, is switching from charges of "creeping socialism" to a "me-too" approach on issues at home.

Moreover, said Truman, Eisenhower—in endorsing Republican Sens. McCarthy of Wisconsin and Jenner of Indiana for re-election has fallen too far "to scramble back to a position of decency and honor."

Truman summed up his coast-to-coast campaign by firing all his guns at the Republicans. At the same time he enlarged on what he had said about Eisenhower to date.

GOP Would Fight Columbus

He said, at a Columbus Day Citizens Committee dinner, that the Republicans are people who, in 1492, would have insisted that the world is flat.

"In fact, I'm not altogether certain what their views may be on that subject, even now," the President said.

In his Columbus Day dinner speech later tonight at the Waldorf-Astoria, Truman lit into Eisenhower sharply on the foreign policy issue, saying the general has made all sorts of criticisms but:

"The only specific suggestion he has made about these military and economic aid programs is to propose violent cuts in money spent for our own defense and to help strength our allies."

"Now this is a new kind of isolationism," the President said. "The old isolationism was to say that the United States was surrounded by an ocean moat that no enemy could cross. The new approach is to say: yes, we are part of the world—but not if it costs more money."

Truman said Eisenhower recently made a speech saying American efforts to bring about greater unity in Europe have been failures.

He Warns Negroes

A few hours earlier he told cheering tens of thousands of Negroes in Harlem that the country's whole civil rights program will be put in grave danger if Eisenhower, backed by Southerners like South Carolina Gov. James F. Byrnes, gets into the White House .

When the President's party returned to the Biltmore Hotel after his Harlem speech, Police Commissioner George P. Monaghan said 1¾ million persons had seen him during his motorcade trip and at the Harlem rally.

In a major appeal to Negro voters, Truman said the Democratic candidates on the other hand would fight for strong new civil rights measures.

Despite Eisenhower's "whispering promises" to Negroes, the President said, a Republican administration could not be depended on even to preserve the civil rights program already in effect—and that one, he declared, is not good enough.

Truman gave his pledge of firm Democratic action toward equal rights legislation on behalf of both Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson and his vice Presidential running-mate Sen. John J. Sparkman.

SAFB Contract Will Be Given This Tuesday

The second big contract at the Sedalia Air Force Base, south of Knob Noster, is to be let at 11 a.m. Tuesday, according to Col. L. J. Lincoln of the U.S. Corps of Engineers at Kansas City. The date first was released for Oct. 10, but this was in error.

Contractors will bid on the new 10,000-foot runway, taxi ways, and parking aprons. The contract is expected to be in excess of 3-million dollars.

Work on construction of new barracks, mess hall, administration buildings upon which a contract was let two weeks ago, is expected to get underway about Oct. 15 and not later than Nov. 1.

According to Col. Lincoln, the contracts to be let Tuesday call for completion in 270 calendar days, excluding Sundays and holidays.

The Weather

Demo Chief Charges GOP Hired Hecklers

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (AP)—Paul E. Fitzpatrick, New York State Democratic chairman, charged today that local Republican leaders paid children to boo President Truman on his whistle-stop tour across the state yesterday.

He said he was informed this was done at the direction of the Republican State Committee.

Harvey Call, publicity director of the Republican State Committee, commented:

"How asinine can you get? The way the President conducted himself it would not be necessary to pay anybody to boo him."

Adlai Warns Dixie Of Cost Of A GOP Win

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 11 (AP)—Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson closed a two-day battle to keep Dixie Democratic with a sharp reminder tonight that a Republican victory will cost the South positions of power in Congress.

The Democratic presidential nominee, standing firmly on the Democratic platform, interpreted his difference with the South on civil rights as one of method only.

"I do not believe," Stevenson said, "that Southerners have less regard for human dignity than other Americans."

In an address prepared for delivery here tonight at Berry Field, the Illinois governor took a parting fling at Democratic governors—Byrnes of South Carolina, Shivers of Texas, Kennon of Louisiana—who have abandoned his cause and jumped to the Eisenhower camp.

"Embittered apostates" he called them, without speaking their names—men who "proclaim themselves Democrats while supporting the nominee of the Republican party."

Stevenson put in an 18-hour day on the political firing line, a busy day of campaigning here in Tennessee and at Miami and Tampa along a trail Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower had followed in early September.

In Miami, where Republican nominee Eisenhower had made a corruption in government speech, Stevenson promised he would fight corruption "ruthlessly."

Also in Miami, and here tonight in Nashville, the Illinois governor jeered at Eisenhower's claim that the South is a neglected, taken-for-granted, captive of the Democrats.

A crowd of 10,000 heard his early afternoon speech at Miami, about 2,000 less than heard Eisenhower deliver a night speech in September. Nearly 15,000 others lined streets over which Stevenson passed or greeted him at the airport.

Eisenhower, he said in the Nashville address, has suggested to Southerners that the road to freedom from political captivity lies in following the "embittered apostates."

"I say," the Democratic nominee declared, "It can only lead to the political emasculation of a region which has played a tremendous role in shaping American policy from the dawning days of this nation."

This brought the total number of registered voters in the city to about 424,500.

52 Owners Of Motels Attend State Convention Held Here

"Missouri's Future in Highways" was the topic of the main talk presented at the third annual Missouri Motor Hotel Convention by P. H. Daniels, assistant chief engineer of the Missouri State Highway Department, at Convention Hall, Liberty Park, Friday . The convention began that morning and lasted until late Saturday afternoon.

Speaking before 52 motel owners, some of them accompanied by their families and friends, Daniels said that for several years American motorists " have been experiencing traffic nightmares."

This, he explained, was because highway departments throughout the country were hard-pressed to keep up in construction with the amazing increase in traffic in the past 30 years.

"No one could forsee, in the Model-T days of 1920," he said, "that the number of motor vehicles would increase from nine million to 52 million in so short a time."

He said that the inability to push construction during the depression years had also contributed to the pile-up of inadequate highways.

He then introduced an over-all picture of the new 10-year highway construction program passed by the state legislature last year calling for the expenditure of $557½ million. He predicted that by the end of the ten years Missouri would rank among the top states in highway adequacy.

Daniels Replaces Whitten

Daniels made his speech Friday afternoon in place of Rex Whitten, chief engineer, who underwent an operation two weeks ago.

The convention began Friday morning with the registration of motel owners in attendance from all over the state. Miss Clarice Metler, of the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce, assisted with the registration.

15 Exhibits On Display

An introduction of exhibitors followed. On display were 15 exhibits of articles and furnishings designed for use in motor hotels.

A noon luncheon was held at Dan's Restaurant. Harlo Dunn, executive secretary of the Missouri Good Roads Association, spoke on the relation of good roads and the success of motels. Mr. Yeasel, of the Carrier Air Conditioning Co., described the installation of air conditioning in motels as a coming must.

Friday afternoon, following Daniel's talk on highways, a talk was given by C. W. Lind of the Sherman-Williams Co. on the subject of "Color Schemes as Investment for Profit." He said that proper use of colors in interior decoration is the best method of insuring satisfied customers.

Larry Jones, Jefferson City, secretary manager of the Osteopaths of Missouri, was guest speaker at Friday night's banquet at Dan's. He said that the public relation of the motel industry to all business is making America easy to sell to the traveling public. He emphasized that successful motel ownership depended solely on individual effort.

Speakers Saturday morning were Steve Gilman, chief of the field reporters of the American Automobile Association, who stressed the recent increase among employers of granting two weeks' vacation with pay and its importance to motel owners, and Prentiss Mooney, director of the Missouri Resources and Development Commission. His subject was the methods used to advertise Missouri as a vacationland.

A discussion of toll roads was led by James Jackson, of the Show-Me Motel, Columbia. A resolution was adopted by the Missouri Motor Hotel Association stating its opposition to the construction of toll roads in the state.

Bob Gresham, of Temple, Tex., was guest speaker at the Saturday noon luncheon at Dan's. He is editor of Tourist Court Journal. He predicted that more tourists courts will be built in the next 12 months than in any past comparable period.

Officers were elected for the coming year. They are: John Duggins, New Haven Court of Springfield, president; Andrew Hermann, U-Smile Motel, Kansas City, vice-president; James Jackson, Show-Me Motel, Columbia, secretary-treasurer.

A vote of thanks was given retiring president E. E. Schumann, Rolla, Ora Deckey, Springfield, retiring secretary-treasurer, and Lloyd Phillips, chairman of the convention's activities.

The convention adjourned at 3 p.m. Saturday.

Community Chest Funds For Local Use

Advance work for the annual Community Chest Drive is already underway and the big campaign will be started on Wednesday of this week. Workers will be seeking a total of $29,600 for the eight participating agencies.

Budgets have been literally cut to the bone this year and the amounts being asked are for actual needs only, without "frills." Each one of the agencies will share proportionately in the total raised, so the full amount is necessary for any one group to get its full quota.

T. H. Yount is chairman of the Community Chest and W. A. Smith is the fund drive chairman. They have a large staff at work preparing for the drive with the advance gifts committee already having started solicitations.

Those agencies to participate and the budgets set for them by the Community Chest board, are:

Melita Day Nursery	$1600
Teen Town	500
North Side Teen Town	500
Mineola Day Nursery	1000
Girl Scouts	7000
Boy Scouts	7000
Salvation Army	9000
Childrens Mercy Hospital	2500
Chest Expenses	500

It may be seen from above that the Chest is a home town affair with practically every penny raised going for local youths or for worthy rehabilitation and religious work in Sedalia. Even the money for the Children's Mercy Hospital, which is located in Kansas City, goes to local boys and girls. The hospital gives more in care to Pettis County youths in a year than is represented by its share of the Chest fund.

Arkansas Paper Switches To GOP After 93 Years

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 11 (AP)—The oldest continuously published weekly newspaper in Arkansas staunchly Democratic since 1859 has editorially endorsed Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for the presidency.

Hugh Park, publisher of the Press-Argus at Van Buren, Ark., said today the newspaper is supporting the Republican nominee because "Mr. Adlai Stevenson has made no outstanding record as governor of Illinois, that corruption has aggravated good government during his administration, that his special talents in leadership, if any, are yet to be proven."

Among other things, Park also declared that "Eisenhower's election will be a definite wedge for opening an active two-party system in Arkansas.

"It's a neck and neck fight between Eisenhower and Stevenson in northwest Arkansas. Eisenhower will carry this section if Democrats don't get busy."

Robert Roach, chairman of the Citizens for Eisenhower Committee in Arkansas, said A. P. Murray, Democratic publisher of the weekly Wynne Progress, also has endorsed Eisenhower. Roach said the list of newspapers supporting the General in Arkansas is growing.

Murray is president of the Arkansas Press Association; Park is vice-president. Wynne is in east Arkansas.

Murray was not available for comment immediately.

Home Destroyed On Babcock Ave., Early Saturday

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed a one-story residence at Fourth and Babcock about 3:30 a.m. Saturday. The loss was estimated at $4,000 by Assistant Fire Chief Emmett Vaught.

The fire companies received the fire alarm at 3:54 a.m. and when they left their fire stations the whole east end of Sedalia was lighted by the flames. The entire interior was a mass of flames and the roof had already collapsed.

The building is owned by Lyman Littlefield of LaMonte.

According to neighbors, the residence had been vacant for the past five or six weeks.

Noted Young Soprano Will Be First Symphony Guest

As the Sedalia Symphony Orchestra begins its 17th season in concert Monday, Oct. 20, Miss Shirlee Emmons, gifted young American soprano, will be presented as the guest artist with Abe Rosenthal, conductor.

Born in Stevens Point, Wis., she attended Lawrence College in nearby Appleton, graduating with a degree in music. Then she spent a year at the Curtis Institute studying under the late Mme. Elisabeth Schumann. Last year was spent in Europe as a winner of the Fulbright Award.

Miss Emmons has been soloist with the Robert Shaw Chorale both on tour and in Carnegie Hall appearances. Miss Geraldine Teufel is the assistant conductor of the orchestra and Hugh Williams, Warrensburg, will be back, after a year's absence, as concertmaster. Miss June Aldrich, Warrensburg, who served as concertmaster last season, will play in the string section.

The first concert will be at the Smith - Cotton High School auditorium.

Fisher Died On Way To Hospital

John Hays Placed In Custody After Shooting Earl Fisher

John Hays, 70, 801 East 11th has been placed in protective custody by the police after the shotgun slaying of Earl Fisher, 38, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank F. Fisher, 317 East Saline, in front of Hays' house at 5:45 p.m. Saturday night. Hays admitted shooting Fisher.

He told police that Fisher recently divorced from Hays' daughter, drove up in his car to the west side of the house, accompanied by a girl. Hays, doing some repair work around the house, met him.

Hays told police that Fisher said, "I hear you was looking for me."

Hays said he denied it and that he warned Fisher that he'd "call the law." Fisher invited him to do so, he said, and Hays went to the other side of the house to ask his wife, who was raking leaves, to telephone the police.

Mrs. Hays went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. "Dolly" Farris, 815 East 11th, and from there called the police at 5:42 p.m. Mr. Hays went into their own home and waited there, after getting the shotgun from a clothes closet in the kitchen.

Three minutes lapsed between the call for police to come and get Fisher until the time the police received another emergency call for an ambulance to be sent to the address, the caller informing them a man had been shot.

Hays told police that while his wife was calling the law, Fisher drove his car around the block and headed east on 11th, parking the car about the middle of the street, on the south side in front of the house, then got out of the car and walked toward the front porch. Hays opened the screen door, he said, and warned Fisher not to come any closer.

When Fisher didn't stop, Hays said, he picked up the shotgun leaning against the front door, raised it to his hip, and fired it point blank at Fisher, hitting him in the upper right side of the chest.

Fisher Dies Quickly

The police arrived a few minutes later, and an ambulance was called from Bothwell Hospital. Fisher was dead on arrival at the hospital. His mother, who had been notified of the shooting went to the hospital. There she viewed the body of her son and had to be taken to her home.

Fisher was accompanied by a young woman who had identified herself as, Miss Lettie Hughes, 29, Lexington. She was with Fisher when he went to the Hays home and she witnessed the shooting.

The young woman said at police headquarters where she had been taken to be questioned, that she and Fisher expected to go to Arkansas Saturday night to be married on Sunday.

Hays spoke quietly and calmly of his part in the shooting. He readily admitted firing the shotgun at Fisher. He said Fisher had no weapon in his hand as he walked toward the porch, but that he (Hays) was afraid Fisher might follow up former threats "to get rid of us and burn our house down."

Hays said he had had a warrant issued for Fisher's arrest on Aug. 11 for disturbing the peace of Mrs. Hays after Fisher had visited the Hays home. Sheriff John F. Taylor told James Durley, city attorney, that Fisher could not be located in Sedalia and that the warrant was mailed to Kansas City after it had been reported that Fisher was there.

Warrant Not Delivered

The warrant, Taylor said, was returned not served. Taylor said he then was told that Fisher was working in Lexington and that he gave the warrant to Trooper Pete Stohr to serve on Fisher. Fisher could not be located then, either, Taylor said. He said he thought Fisher had been deliberately dodging the warrant.

Mrs. Hays told a reporter that when her husband warned Fisher to stop as he walked toward the front porch, he replied, "You old gray-headed — — —, it's either me or you, one of us is going to die." Hays told police Fisher was about four feet from the porch when Hays pulled the trigger.

After the shooting Hays remained in the yard until police took him into custody.

Mrs. Hays went to police headquarters where she too, told the story of Fisher's threatening the Hays family. She stated her husband had warned "Earl to go away and leave us alone, but he just kept walking toward the house and cursing my husband."

Prosecuting Attorney Harold Bamburg asked Mr. Hays if he would give a statement, and John C. McCloskey, attorney, said that Mr. Hays had no statement to make at this time. Mrs. Hays then gave her story to Bamburg and signed a statement.

Bamburg also questioned Miss Hughes and she gave her version of the shooting and signed a statement.

Dr. J. M. Rodeman, acting coroner, viewed the body. He consulted with Bamburg and they decided to hold an inquest into the shooting at 10 a. m. Tuesday at the Ewing Funeral Home.

Hays was taken into protective custody and is being held in the Pettis County Jail. Chief of Police Edgar Neighbors and Sheriff John F. Taylor, said.

Miss Hughes was released after her statement was given, and went to the home of Fisher's parents.

Fisher's body was taken to the Ewing Funeral Home.

ROKs Still Cling To Knob Near Top Of White Mountain

SEOUL, Sunday Oct. 12—(AP)—Tenacious South Korean infantrymen clung desperately to a knob 50 yards below the top of White Mountain early today while blazing Allied artillery fire pounded the battle-chewed crest into a seeming no-man's land.

Allied artillery spotters reported no trace of some 1,500 Chinese Communists who stormed the key Western Front peak late Saturday.

The battle for White Horse, which overlooks the Allied bastion of Chorwon and dominates the road hub too Seoul, raged into it sixth day today. The fight is considered far from over.

More Chinese troops were reported grouping to the north where the Reds have massed some 16,000 reinforcements. Valiant South Korean Ninth Division troops have pledged to keep White Horse "at all costs."

By midnight Saturday the peak had changed hands 23 times in 125 hours of non-stop battle.

An Allied officer on the front reported the Chinese might have a few troops remaining on the peak but none could be detected.

The hill top itself was a "mass of ruin," he said. Former entrenchments and bunkers "no longer exist."

UN Big Guns Open-Up

Allied big guns opened up with an intense barrage on White Horse and Red springboard positions to the north just after midnight.

"We're really giving them hell now with our artillery," said a U. S. officer with the South Koreans.

Answering fire from the Reds, however, slackened off to only 400 round—a sharp decrease from the first few days of fighting.

Elsewhere on the Western Front, U. S. Second Infantry Division troops raided Chinese Communist positions for five hours on T-Bone Hill, west of Chorwon, early Saturday. Results were not announced by the U. S. Eighth Army. It said three other Allied raiding groups fought short engagements west of Yonchon.

In the air the Fifth Air Force reported U. S. Sabrejet pilots had their most successful day of the month, downing six Communist MIG fighters near the Manchurian border, far north of the battle zone.

Allied fighter bombers concentrated on front line strikes. They pummeled Red positions around White Horse throughout the day, particularly on another height one mile north where the Reds were grouping.

South Korean-manned tanks maneuvered in the valley separating White Horse from the neighboring height. They poured direct fire into the Red staging area and on the north slopes of White Horse itself.

Chinese Keep Coming

The heavily-mauled Chinese troops, ignoring casualties, kept relentless pressure on White Horse.

The Red unleashed a stiff attack by 750 to 1,500 men to drive the South Koreans off the crest at 5:30 p. m. Saturday.

"Allied artillery, poured a barrage on another approaching group earlier in the day. The Eighth Army said "artillery played a major role in reducing this threat . .. inflicting heavy casualties."

Fifth Air Force headquarters announced the loss of six Allied planes in the week ended Friday. Allied Sabres bagged four MIGs. Four Allied planes were downed by Red ground gunners, one Sabre was lost in combat and another plane was lost by other causes.

Ike Studies A Campaign On High Level

DENVER, Oct. 11 (AP)—A strategy of a "high level approach," avoiding personalities and partisan retorts, was under study today by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's political high command for the final weeks of the presidential campaign.

The decision, an informant said, will be based on examination of reports coming in now from all parts of the country.

They deal, not only with Eisenhower's own sweep through the west, but more especially with reactions to President Truman's "give-him-hell" train trip. At some points, the general was only a few hundred miles behind the President, speaking in the cities a few days later.

On the basis of latest information, Eisenhower's top lieutenants are trying to determine the answers to two interlocking questions:

1. Has the President helped or hurt the Democrats by his attacks on Eisenhower?

He May Stress Crusade

2. Has the moment come for Eisenhower to emphasize the crusading nature of his campaign, leaving off any direct replies to Truman and Gov. Adlai Stevenson, while stressing his declaration, I'm not a politician?"

Eisenhower scheduled a weekend rest. He went out to play golf today with Palmer Hoyt, editor and publisher of the Denver Post, John Culbreth of Denver and Cliff Roberts of New York all personal friends.

He will attend church services Sunday. His aides said he has made no appointments for either day but plans to devote himself to a study of reports from the campaign to date.

Monday, Eisenhower resumes his hard-driving campaign, moving through Wyoming and then into Oklahoma and Louisiana. From there, he swings into Texas—a glittering prize in the eyes of the Republicans. It is one of the three southern states where they believe Eisenhower has his best hope of defeating the Democrats. The other two are Virginia and Florida.

There was no further indication today when Eisenhower would make a public statement about his financial position.

Replying Friday to a written question submitted by correspondents accompanying him on this trip, the general said he will make such a statement when the details have been completed.

Sen. Wayne Morse (R-Ore) commented tonight that Eisenhower and his vice presidential mate, Sen. Richard Nixon of California, ought to make public their income tax returns.

"If they have nothing to hide," Morse said, "it is a simple matter to turn over their office copy to the press."

Eisenhower's headquarters here are expecting a blast from Truman and Stevenson on the subject, as well. But Eisenhower told correspondents he has had "lots of letters" from people around the country about the question of his finances, and, he said "None of them said I ought to make a statement."

Mrs. Helen G. Irwin Speaks To Over 300 At BPWC Banquet

"Freedom is the right to choose" said Miss Helen G. Irwin, president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, in an address before more than 300 people at the national affairs banquet of the Sedalia Business and Professional Women's Club Saturday night at the Smith-Cotton Cafeteria. In the address, "The Ramparts We Build", Miss Irwin told of the freedom that had inspired the pioneers of our country, and said one small candle of freedom on this continent has lighted the world.

Miss Irwin's speech in part follows:

"There are now two million more eligible women voters than men in the U. S." she stated, and "political party managers are hoisting the same sign, with women being vigorously wooed by both parties. The 1952 election will swing on their vote."

"We cannot have our cake and eat it, too" the speaker said. "We have full employment; and opportunity for education and advancement along economic and political lines, yet we do not do our full political duty." She added "far beyond our rights is our duty —our responsibility to preserve freedom, for if freedom flickers out in the United States, then civilization is lost."

Miss Irwin reminded her listeners that this nation was created by those who wanted freedom and any extension of our government has been based upon the theory of more rights and more freedom for more people.

Security A Fine Thing

"Security is a very fine thing. We all want it for our children and our grandchildren—but not unless they can have freedom first" she added. "As free citizens of a state designed to serve us rather than to dominate, we can worship in the church of our choice; obtain the kind of education we want; live where we will, earn what we are worth—spend it all, or save from it, just as we please. We can be home owners or renters. We can tell our representatives in state legislators and in the Congress how we want them to vote.

"We can read the newspapers we prefer. We can tune in on the commentators we want to hear. We can do all this without fear of reprisal."

Continuing: "Since 1945 when the United Nations was born in San Francisco, we have seen three-fourths of the people of the world emerge from dependence and begin their struggle for freedom, thus forcing the world to consider new conflicts and new problems with which the leading nations are on the whole, unprepared to cope.

"Because of our natural resources, our ability to produce, our inventive genius, the United States of America is the hope of the world. Because of our private enterprise system, we have the best standard of living for the average family that the world has ever

FFA Invades KC For Meet

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 11 (AP) — The farm boys are coming to town.

From all of the 48 states, Hawaii and Puerto Rico, about 6,000 youths began rolling into Kansas City today for the 25th convention of the Future Farmers of America. It is a non-profit, non-political organization for farm boys studying vocational agriculture in secondary public schools.

For most of them will be a round of sight-seeing, exhibit viewing, entertainment and the awaiting of honors to be presented for various types of farm activity.

But to 100 of them, two delegates from each state and territory, it will be serious business in convention sessions.

Besides it will give the boys a chance to swap yarns. For instance delegate William Tamashiro of Waiane, Oahu, Hawaii, might get a few tips on what they are doing in Missouri from delegate Frank Wilhite of Columbia.

High point of the week's honors will be Tuesday night when the Star American Farmer award is made. This award carries with it $1,000 in cash. Three other FFA boys will receive the Regional Star Farmer awards along with checks of $500.

Earlier that day 318 members will receive the honorary degree of American Farmer.

Other awards, each with a $250 check, are for farm electrification, dairying, mechanics, safety, and soil and water management.

Jackpot Is Common Denominator As Bingo Unites SHAPE Personnel

By ROSETTE HARGROVE
NEA Staff Correspondent

ROCQUENCOURT, France — The success of SHAPE's weekly bingo games is obvious. In the beginning, the prizes were things like eight-day cuckoo clocks. Nowadays, winners take home 400-day cuckoo clocks. Those extra 392 days make a big difference.

But the biggest prize in the international bingo parties is something less tangible than cuckoo clocks, but more important to the mission of Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers, Europe. The games have served the purpose for which they were begun — to bring people of many nationalities together in a friendly atmosphere.

Before the games started, about a year ago, the tendency was for the Americans, French, Turks, Greeks, Italians, Dutch and others on Gen. Matthew Ridgway's staff to seek their amusement with their own compatriots. High-ranking officials decided something should be done to make everyone, from top brass to enlisted men, mingle socially.

Bingo was the choice, because it presented no language barriers. It proved so successful that now between 400 and 500 attend from 8 to 11:30 every Friday evening. The players find it fun, sometimes profitable and, anyhow, it costs far less than any Paris night club.

The bingo sessions attract all kinds. Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower was a devotee, and so, today, is Mrs. Alfred Gruenther, wife of the Supreme Commanders' top aide. They all like to take a chance at the prizes — including cars as well as cuckoo clocks — and the money jack pots.

The drawing takes place in the officers' mess, while a loud speaker relays the caller's words to the cafeteria close by, which is given over to non-commissioned officers and other ranks.

A card costs $1, and a player can buy as many as he likes. Every week there are two jack pots, which vary from $75 to $150.

Capt. Stanley Waitkus of New York is the bingo commander - in chief. He officiates every week, operates the numbers cage and thinks up the variations. He explained that the game started on a shoestring, but its finances are now in good shape.

"At the beginning," he says, "they were modest. Eight-day cuckoo clocks, electric irons, vases, ash trays, lighters and plastic luggage have now given way to portable electric ovens, portable transoceanic radios, portable bars for the home, 400-day cuckoo and chiming clocks, real leather luggage, beauty kits and silver-plated cocktail shakers, to mention but a few."

The most coveted prize of all, however, is the door prize. The first was composed of an electric mixer, oven, waffle-iron and toaster. The last two have been Renault automobiles. Numbers of all SHAPE passes, supplied by the Security Officer, are placed in a barrel and every week one of these is drawn during the bingo game.

The only ruling is that the owner of the pass number called must be physically present at the drawing. Recently the number of an American major's pass was called, but he had left the game a few minutes before.

This is extra-curricular work, as far as Waitkus is concerned. His official job is handling the pay of officer and enlisted U. S. personnel at Supreme Headquarters, as well as the transportation of dependents and their household goods.

Today Set Aside As Grandmother's Day In Nation

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's editor

Gangway, here comes grandma! She may be piloting her own plane or doing the smoothest rhumba on the floor. She may be a corporation president or a candidate for public office.

She's thrown away her traditional props, the rocking chair and knitting, and is enjoying life.

With Grandmother's Day coming up Sunday, Oct. 1, various people are busy making lists of the 10 most glamorous, most succesful, most influential most athletic, most astonishing and most daring grandmas.

Grandma is enjoying a golden era. The best brains of science have come up with new ways of prolonging youth and beauty; society has provided new outlets for her energies in politics and business; she has lived long enough to learn that life can be fun at any age, but more fun after the uncertainties and struggles of early youth are past.

Two famous grandmas on every list are those hardy charmers, Gloria Swanson and Marlene Dietrich.

La Swanson is so busy making TV films and running a wholesale dress business she has no time to count birthdays, but her well-publicized allure carries a higher voltage than ever, and her figure still is well within the dimensions of the bathing beauty.

La Dietrich can be mistaken for her daughter at 10 paces, and her famous legs cause as much excitement as ever. Recently a famous dress designer called her the most imitated woman—the one most women would like to look like, the one who wears clothes best and sets the mode for others to follow.

The glamorous Gloria says women are getting younger all the time—and she's on hand to prove it. She claims she meets grandmothers every day who look and act as young and sleek and vital as she.

It's because they have learned not to watch the calendar, she says, and have found that the world is full of a number of things that are lots of fun if you take the trouble to look for them.

New York and Philadelphia, as well as Washington, have witnessed inaugurations of Presidents of the United States.

Hofheins' Win On Tom Moore Radio 'Fair'

Charles Hofheins will have the unusual privilege Nov. 11 of hearing himself appear on a nationwide radio program. He already has taken part in the program and it was transcribed to be broadcast at the later date.

On a recent trip to Chicago for the office equipment convention, Mr. and Mrs. Hofheins visited Tom Moore's "Ladies Fair" program. They took part in the "live" broadcast of the day and Mrs. Hofheins received an award of a new dinette set for her kitchen. It will be shipped soon.

After the regular broadcast, Tom announced he was making another show to be recorded for Nov. 11 when he'll be on the road. He sought contestants and Mr. Hofheins took part. Besides answering questions and receiving his awards, Charles, a tenor in the Sedalia Men's Choral Club, had to sing. waltzed through three lines before he was stopped. That's what he'll hear come Armistice Day.

As awards, Charlie received a year's supply of flash lights — an even half dozen of them; junior and senior travel kits and a jar of preserves.

Always Beautify Your Elbows

BY ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

Alas and alack, what has happened to beautiful elbows? Time was when women confidently exposed this area of their anatomy with great pride and vanity.

Today, however, the elbow is considered, among other things, fine for leaning upon, and excellent as a joint that allows you to bend your arm.

If you personally have considered your elbows as nothing more than functional, here's your opportunity to make them a beauty asset.

The late summer's sleeveless creations have, no doubt, left your elbows rough and dry. To coax new softness and prettiness into them, try this kitchen facial daily.

First, mix a teaspoonful of ordinary cornmeal with the same amount of soap beads or granules. A few drops of water sprinkled onto this mixture will moisten it. Then massage well into the elbows, "scouring" of dry skin and patchy flakes. Rinse with warm water, finally splashing with cold.

Next, smooth on a light film of baby oil. Left on over night, the oil will lubricate and soften the skin around the elbows, keeping them looking smooth and lovely throughout the fall and winter months.

Most Common Criminal Today Is One Who Swipes Your Books

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—The most common criminal in America today is neither the burglar, the bandit nor the shady opium salesman.

No law really protects the public against him. He operates with a smooth tongue instead of a gun, he rarely is strung from a gallows as some think he deserves, and yet every year he walks away scot-free with millions.

Who is this bold rascal? Well, if you are able to read, it is probably you—the ordinary book thief.

"But I'm not a book thief," you protest. "Why, I never stole a book in my life."

Oh, yes you did. If you go inspect your books right now, the chances are that you'll find it a book that says "stolen from the library of—."—And the name written therein won't be your own.

"But I didn't really steal it—I only borrowed it!" you say, and add virtuously: "And I certainly intend to return it."

Maybe. But you probably have had it for years. You are holding this valuable property against the real owner's will — of course he wanted it back long ago—and if that isn't thievery, what is it?

He could go to court about it, but among book lovers there is a tolerant recognition of human frailty and a general live-and-let-live policy. And of course each knows the other fellow may break down sometime and buy a book worth borrowing himself.

The true professional book thief is a scoundrel who steals precious volumes only to barter these priceless products of the human spirit for filthy cash. He is beneath the contempt of murderers, and stands alone in the very sewer of crime.

There is also the occasional kleptomaniac who has such a compulsion to take what doesn't belong to him that he will rent a $10 hotel room just for a chance to lift a Gideon Bible.

But most of America's millions of book thieves are happy amateurs, who prefer to be known as "long-term borrowers." And this softer term is often used by forgiving librarians who know how hard it is for some patrons to bring back a book they are having a long love affair with.

"We never say they are stolen," said a lady spokesman for the New York Public Library. "We say the people just forgot to return them.

"Sometimes they come back 25 years late."

Sometimes also they are mailed back by the widows of the men who checked them out years before "for four weeks," then held them until death.

The volumes that now are most likely to vanish mysteriously from open library shelves are the "how-to-do-something" books, such as "How to Become a Detective." One with that title doesn't have a chance.

But the ordinary book prowler like you and me who merely feed on each other's collections, actually served a useful purpose. As the bees pollinate a clover field, we enrich our own store of books by "borrowing" back and forth, giving it a variety it would otherwise lack.

I doubt if I have read any of the scores of books I bought myself in the last ten years. They never stay in my house long enough. But I never fail to read a book I "borrow," and I am honest enough to say I never borrowed one with the real intention of returning it.

But my private library is an open shelf—of other people's books. I'll match it against any man's, and the odds are it contains at least one book that belongs to him.

Young Conductors Get Their Chance With Big Orchestra

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11 (AP) — Twelve lucky young conductors have just had a turn, one after another, at conducting the great Philadelphia Orchestra, but sometimes it was hard to tell who was conducting whom.

It was last week at a training program, a sort of symphonic symposium undertaken by the orchestra and the American Symphony Orchestra League.

The conductors who tried on Philadelphia Maestro Eugene Ormandy's shoes for size came from 12 states, from communities as small as 4,600 as big as 375,000. More than a score of other conductors sat in on the workshop and watched rehearsals in the Academy of Music.

Ormandy's comment, after seeing half the young men in action, was:

"They seem to show a well rounded schooling. These men from our small towns have unusual backgrounds, and reveal a tremendous interest and talent."

Then he added, like any proud papa boasting of his baby: "But they also show definitely that they are not accustomed to working with a class-A orchestra, and are a great disadvantage when they stand before my marvelous men."

The visitors were mostly in their 30s. Some teach, some have regular business jobs, only a few are full-time conductors. Each one conducted, for 10 or 15 minutes, a piece of his own choice and then something suggested by Ormandy, perhaps as sight work.

It was obvious that they were overwhelmed by the mere volume of sound, the abilities of the instrumentalists, their responsibeness to directions. It was not Ormandy who awed the visitors, it was the orchestra.

He told them: "Don't be tense. Stop the orchestra when it doesn't do what you want and make it begin over again. Handle these men exactly as you would men in your own orchestra."

One visitor got a laugh by asking: "Does that mean we can fire some of them?"

Yet as one said, and as all would hve agreed, it was "a rare opportunity," and whatever they did to the orchestra, it did a lot to them. In discussions, too, they found many common problems, among them the question of paid as against unpaid players, the crucial matter of programming, the cost of scores, the cost and need of big-name soloists. One conductor was going home to reseat his players, and another intended to refashion his stage to improve the acoustics.

Ugh! Squid-Squished-Drain!

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Mrs. Louise Johnson, 27, of 752 South Main Street was surprised when she pulled a baby squid from a clogged lavatory drain in her home. Legs of the 10-legged member of the octopus family wound around her finger when she poked it into the drain to investigate.

Dr. John D. Mizelle, professor of zoology at the University of Notre Dame, said local housewives need not fear a similar occurrence.

He said the baby sqid was of the edible variety imported from the Mediterranean area. He said they have not been known to survive in fresh water.

After death the body cools at an average rate of about 1.5 degrees an hour, says the American Medical Association.

The island of Formosa has a population of eight million, many of them refugees and Nationalist soldiers.

The Muddle of the Veterans' Hospitals

Showdown On 'Non Service' Cases Tops Complicated Crisis

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Two-thirds of the patients in Veterans Administration hospitals, almost half of whom are mental cases, eventually may be forced out on the street.

This could result from an approaching show - down on whether or not sick veterans, whose trouble has nothing to do with their service, should be treated in VA hospitals.

At present there are 3,182 patients in VA hospitals whose trouble results from their military service, while 67,529 of them are being treated for ills which have nothing to do with service, the so - called non - service - connected cases.

According to spokesmen for the national veterans organizations, the ousting of the non-service-connected cases is the goal of a "clique" in congress, some VA officials and some anti - veteran groups.

However, according to the experts on veterans affairs, the nation's whole veteran program will soon have to be opened up for study in light of world events. Never before has the U. S. had more than one million men per year becoming veterans, with no end to the problem in sight. It could mean that eventually just about every male taxpayer will be a veteran.

The present hospital situation just happens to be the one phase of the total vet future problem to be headed for a crisis first. It is also the most complicated aspect of it.

Helping to confuse the whole VA medical problem are congressional boondoggling, rising costs of medicine generally, a drastic shortage of hospital personnel, the Korean war and even the issue of socialized medicine.

The trigger setting off the medical crisis was a $31 million cut made in VA's hospital budget by the 82nd Congress. It has forced Admiral Joel T. Boone, VA medical director, to make some drastic cuts in the service.

He had to reduce the total VA hospital capacity of 110,243 beds to 99,200 beds. This is in the face of a waiting list of 22,500 non-service-connected cases.

The most unexplainable face is that at the same time Congress is making cuts in existing facilities, it is permitting VA to construct a total of 22 brand new hospials with 13,231 beds. If Congress refuses to give VA enough money to operate the beds it has, why build more facilities?

Politics is the answer, according to some. The new hospitals are just going up in the districts of important congressmen, they say. The congressmen responsible for the cuts claim that VA can keep up its present service and absorb the cuts through economies. The best medical brains of the veterans organizations deny this. So does Adm. Boone.

Adm. Boone does claim, however, that all of the hospitals being built are in districts which need them and where staff members would be willing to live. He says that figuring out how to run them after they are built is the problem of Congress.

Dr. Leonard G. Rowntree, chairman of the American Legion Medical Advisory Board, claims that one of the immediate effects of the cut will be to cause a deterioration of the quality of VA medical care. "This opinion," he says, "is based on the fact that reduced appropriations create a feeling of insecurity among the VA medical and surgical personnel."

The law states that veterans with non-service-connected ailments can receive treatment in VA hospitals if they can't afford treatment in private hospitals, and if space is available.

It is this provision which spokesmen for the Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Disabled American Veterans claim that certain congressmen are trying to circumvent by illogical cuts in appropriations. A top Legion man says:

"What other reason could there possibly be for cutting back VA's hospital appropriations at a time when the Korean war is adding more patients to the load all the time? It's obvious that they want to end up cutting out non-service-connected medical treatment in this way. They are just afraid to face the real issue head on."

VFW and DAV spokesmen agree on this point. The DAV man says:

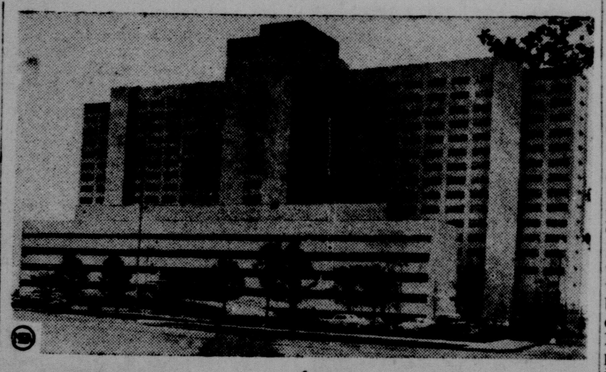
"What most opponents to giving all veterans medical care don't realize is that the medical care they have received has saved the cost of a general pension to all World War I vets. If they hadn't had this care they would have demanded and received a pension."

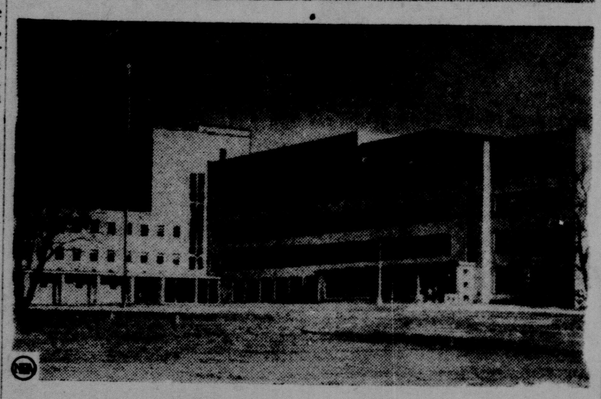
Adm. Boone claims that the critics of giving non-service-connected medical care don't understand the whole problem. He points out that of the non-service-connected cases in VA hospitals, 9728 have tuberculosis, 27,254 are mental cases and most of the rest have such chronic diseases as heart trouble or are paraplegics.

He says:

"When you boil those figures down there are only a very few patients in VA hospitals whom the private hospitals would want as patients. They can't afford to pay for their own medical care. And if they aren't in VA hospitals they will have to be taken care of in some other tax-supported institution or be allowed to die in the street.

"If anyone is trying to force a showdown on non-service-connected cases that is the problem that they are eventually going to arrive at. In one way or another the taxpayer is going to have to foot the bill for their care."





Two recently completed VA hospitals are these in Brooklyn, N. Y. (above) with 1000 beds and in Fort Wayne, Ind. (below) with 200 beds. But while Congress is ordering cuts in existing facilities, it is allowing construction of 22 new hospitals.

Kids' Watch Reaches Milestone

NEW YORK (AP)—The eight millionth "character watch" for children — made famous by colored pictures of juvenile heroes on their dials — has come off the assembly line of the firm that makes them. (U. S. Time Corp.)

The watches are the outgrowth of an attempt to make a watch so sturdy a child could mishandle it without mishap. It was decided that if the watches were so rugged, they ought to be sold to or for children. That was how Mickey Mouse, Cinderella and others came to decorate the watch faces.

Talks Given On The New Version Bible

By Mrs. Harold Priess

CALIFORNIA — The Rev. William Phifer, Jr., minister of the Central Presbyterian Church, Kansas City, Mo., was the principal speaker at the union service of Thanksgiving and Dedication of the Revised Standard Version of the Holy Bible in California, Sept. 30. The service was under the sponsorship of the Ministerial Alliance and was one of three thousand held throughout the nation. Music was by the high school chorus under the direction of Melvin Peterman. Each of the five pastors of the participating churches had a part in the service and the church was filled to capacity. A copy of the new Bible was given to one person for outstanding service from each of the churches represented. Church members honored were Miss Eva Cavers, Presbyterian; Henry Rentsch, Evangelical and Reformed; W. R. Flynt, Christian; Dr. K J.. O'Banion, Baptist and Robert Hood, Methodist.

Bicycle Safety was the subject of discussion at the Lions Club at its Monday meeting. The advisability of requesting an ordinance which would prohibit bicycles on the side walk was one of the questions brought before the club. R. E. Baldwin, president, read some of the safety rules for bicycle riders prepared by the State Highway Patrol and appointed Marion Shores to secure copies of such rules to distribute to riders through the school. Mr. Shores is also to secure the reflector tape which may be pasted to the bicycle fenders.

Dana Hogge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hogge, Margaret Ann Fischer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Fischer and Susan and Nancy Priess, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Priess of California all took part in the Annual Revue of the Harper School of Artistic Dance at the Smith-Cotton high school last Tuesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Embry and Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Lee are taking a two weeks vacation trip to the south. They plan to drive to North Carolina, southward through Florida to Key West and to return home along the Gulf coast through New Orleans.

Mrs. Roger Bumgarner, a registered nurse and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Heyssel, has enrolled at the Missouri School of Nursing to work on her degree. Her husband Dr. Bumgarner is serving with the Medical Corps in Korea.

Plastic Recipe for Landing Craft

DOWN PUGET SOUND roars a plastic landing craft, loaded with troops, on a test run after launching at Bremerton Navy Yard.

By HELEN BAAR
NEA Special Correspondent

BREMERTON, Wash. — Take several hundred pounds of resin, add a little pine oil, some glycol, and a dash of Xylene. Bake in a hot mold. Forty hours later remove one plastic LCVP (Landing Craft, Vehicle Personnel) for the U.S. Navy.

The process used in building the Navy's new plastic landing boats at the Bremerton Navy Yard is more complex than the above recipe indicates, but the formula is basically correct. The Navy yard is turning out the boats in batches like cookies.

The 36-man plastic ships will replace wood and steel models that carried thousands of soldiers and Marines on assault landings on beaches throughout the world during World War II.

The Navy decided to build the heavy landing boats after it had built 150 12-foot, four man plastic wherries which have earned a reputation for durability and economy. One doubtful Navy officer made his own personal test of one of the small boats by beating on it with a 12-pound sledge hammer. He wore himself out, but the little lifeboat remained intact.

* * *

Styrofoam, a synthetic compound, was selected for its buoyancy and strength. A block of Styrofoam twice the size of an apple box can be carried easily by a three-year-old child.

Other materials include glass cloth, glass mat, resin, and various catalytic chemicals. Heavy steel plates are used to construct the molds.

Workmen first spread thin sheets of glass cloth over an inner mold which has been covered with resin colored in traditional Navy gray. More glass matting is laid on the mold. Next, the Styrofoam bouyancy blocks are put in place and more glass matting placed over the whole mold.

For eight hours, nearly 3,200 pounds of resin are pumped into the mold. Forty hours later the outer mold is removed, and a completed hull is ready to receive its engine.

* * *

As a test, one fully loaded plastic boat was beached at top speed —both on sand and gravel beaches. The only damage consisted of a few minor scratches which were easily patched.

In addition to lower maintenance costs, the new plastic boat economizes on construction costs. Very little steel is needed. The boats can be built with semi-skilled labor instead of expensive mechanics.

The solid plastic hull has no seams to caulk and is non-sinkable. The hul lis stronger than wood, will not splinter from gunfire like steel or wood.

One puzzled sailor who operated the boat during a test commented: "First it's wooden ships and iron men; then it was iron ships and wooden men—now it's plastic ships—does that make me a synthetic sailor?"

AFTER 40 HOURS in the mold, plastic hull of landing craft is hoisted away for launching.

Says Wonderful Things About You!

The instant your beautiful Cadillac points its crest into view, it begins to say wonderful things about you.

It says, almost as plainly as if the words were written out, that you are a person of achievement in your own world of affairs.

It talks of your good judgment and your splendid taste—and indicates your sense of responsibility for those who ride with you as passengers, or drive beside you in the traffic lanes.

It speaks of your family and home and your way of life—and, in general, paves the way for the respect of those you encounter as you sit at its wheel.

This is true because those who own Cadillacs form a virtual "Who's Who" of America's highways. In almost every community in the country, it is obvious that Cadillac is the favored car of the leading people.

The reason for this, of course, is found in the history of the car itself.

For fifty years, it has been the unwavering purpose to make Cadillac as fine a car as it is practical to produce. Goodness has always been the watchword—craftsmanship has always been the creed.

As a result, Cadillac has long been known and accepted as—"The Standard of the World." And, inevitably, people who want and seek the finest have turned to Cadillac.

That's why the man who sits at the wheel of a Cadillac is an accepted member of the most distinguished motoring family to be found anywhere.

If you are ready for membership in this incomparable group, better come in and see us soon. We'd be happy to welcome you at any time.

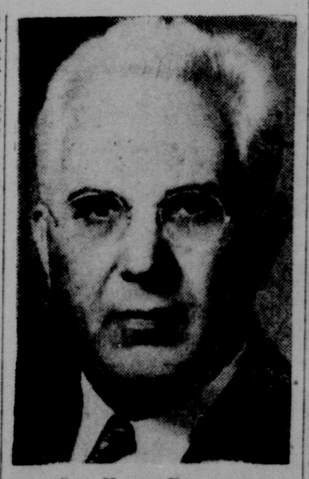
Sen Ferguson, R-Mich., Here For Speech Friday Night

Sen. Homer Ferguson, (R-Mich) will be the speaker Friday, Oct. 17, at 8 p.m. in the Circuit Court room of the courthouse. Senator Ferguson is typically American. He is one of the most energetic defenders of the American way of life in Washington.

Back in 1939, blue-eyed, silver-haired, friendly Homer Ferguson was just another judge sitting on the Wayne County Circuit bench in Detroit. When he was assigned to sit as a one-man grand jury to investigate a "numbers racket", he did his job so well that in the next three years he ferreted out and mopped up gambling and vice rackets which netted more than $20,000,000 a year.

This investigation brought Homer Ferguson the status of a national figure and in November 1942, he was elected Republican senator from Michigan and moved his talents to the Washington scene. It will be a privilege for Sedalians to hear Senator Ferguson for few others in the Halls of Congress have such amazing records of awakening America to the evils of cancerous corruption in municipal government.



Sen. Homer Ferguson

Everyone is cordially invited to hear the senator, under the auspices of the Pettis County Republican Committee, of which Carl G. Schrader is chairman.

Scott Webber Learns Urgent Need For Polio Fund Giving

The sharp, unexpected increase in polio cases this past summer has made urgent early organization to insure that the next March of Dimes drive will be the greatest in history, Scott Webber, Pettis County campaign director, declared today.

Returning from a regional pre-campaign meeting of March of Dimes chairmen, directors and workers, held in Oklahoma City, Mr. Webber said:

"We heard both good news and bad news at the meeting. A staggering total of around 4,000 new cases a week at summer's end piled up a burdensome total. There are indications 1952 will have over 50,000 cases of polio—far exceeding the record-breaking year of 1949.

"The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis is meeting the emergency with all its resources. Medical care is available for all patients, with financial assistance provided for those needing such aid. Drain on chapter funds, however, is terrific.

"Plans therefore have been made to recruit the greatest force of workers ever enrolled in the March of Dimes, so that the drive from Jan. 2 through Jan. 31 will raise the added funds which must be contributed this year. We must continue to care for the thousands and thousands of victims who have known the tragedy of infantile paralysis and at the same time pursue the now-promising search for polio preventive."

The summary of the situation is reported as follows:

The bad news: Polio is rolling up a much higher total of cases than in 1951. The figures are:

As of Sept. 27 a total of 39,146 cases as compared with 20,505 for the same period last year.

Total for the week was 3,538.

The good news: National Foundation headquarters is assisting hundreds and hundreds of chapters that have exhausted their funds. To date this year funds to aid chapters total $5,389,047. Emergencies have been met with 1365 iron lungs, 429 hot pack machines. Nurses sent to critical areas now total 1066, with many more needed.

The crippling effects of the disease have been greatly reduced due to prompt diagnosis and improved treatment sponsored by the March of Dimes.

The fight against polio at last seems on the road to scientific success. Announcements of an important nature in the field of research may be expected soon. The turning point in the fight, according to indications, is approaching. We are winning.

Paramount importance of early organization was stressed at the meeting. Speakers were enthusiastic over the success of the drive last year and there was unanimous expression that many more workers will join the March of Dimes of 1953. Millions of dollars are needed to care for patients and keep up the ceaseless program of research and professional education, it was said.

One of the features of the 1953 campaign will be a greatly expanded "Mothers' March on Polio", in which over two million women are expected to participate.

Those attending the meeting represented the states of Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Texas.

Warren D. Coss of New York, national director of fund raising for the National Foundation, presided at the session. Speakers included Joe Nee of New York City, assistant director of fund raising, James Edington, of Grand Island, Nebraska, western regional manager of fund raising, Dr. Clair E. Turner of Boston, in charge of the National Foundation's relations with schools and colleges and Tom Wrigley of Washington, D. C., publicity consultant.

Legislature Set To Receive Bill On Toll Roads

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 11—(AP)—A bill which will enable Missouri to build and operate toll roads whenever the state is ready probably will be introduced in the next session of the legislature, State Sen. William N. Quinn (D of Maywood) said today.

Quinn said he hoped the measure could be passed in that session.

The joint turnpike committee, of which Quinn is chairman, will be called to meet at Jefferson City after the Nov. 4 election, Quinn said.

Ten of the committee's 12 members recently completed an inspection of eastern state toll roads.

Both Quinn and Sen. Michael Kinney (D of St. Louis) said the committee believes toll roads for Missouri are advisable if financially feasible.

They said a showing of financial feasibility would depend on findings of careful traffic survey and engineering estimates of construction and operating costs.

"Trucks and other traffic will go where the roads are," Kinney observed. "The amount of travel on the Pennsylvania and New Jersey turnpikes is amazing. Even a four-lane road won't carry the traffic on Highway 66 across Missouri when Oklahoma finishes the toll road it is building.

"Missouri is the nation's crossroads, and if the engineer's know traffic is sufficient, Missouri should be right in step on toll roads."

Patients Will Honor Green Ridge Doctor

Persons attending are asked to bring, in addition to their baskets, complete service for each member of their family. The drink will be provided by the committee in charge.

Girl Saves Brother; Mother Dies In Fire

PARSONS, Kan., Oct. 11 (AP)—A 35-year-old mother perished in a home fire late yesterday, but her four-year-old daughter carried her baby brother to safety.

Mrs. Goldie Marie Getman lost her life when a can of kerosene apparently exploded in the home at Montana City, eight miles east of Parsons.

Her four-year-old daughter, Eva Jo Getman emerged from the house with her year-old brother, Amos Hugh, a few minutes after the explosion. Passing neighbors heard the muffled explosion and saw the girl come out with the child.

The husband, Herman Getman, and two neighbors rushed into the home to find the mother dead.

Sheriff John E. Burris said he believed the woman was trying to kindle a fire in the stove by using the kerosene.

Ike, Adlai Giving Flying Machine Big Workout; It Lacks Only Back Platform and Whistlestop

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — If the big airliners had back platforms and didn't need a 5000-foot strip of concrete for a stop, they would be the perfect presiential campaign vehicle.

In spite of this deficiency, however, both candidates have decided that the flyin' machine is better than the choo-choo for getting them around the country to the voter.

The best estimate of Democratic Party travel experts is that Gov. Adlai Stevenson will do about 85 per cent of his traveling, in distance, on airplanes, and the rest by car or train. It's estimated that Gen. Dwight Eisenhower will do even less moving by train.

This is literally flying in the face of tradition. No previous presidential candidates have ever taken to the air to this extent.

In 1948, for example, President Truman traveled 22,000 miles by train and only made one hop in his airplane, a flight from Washington to Miami to speak to the American Legion Convention. And, the experts are pointing out, the two things which now stand out about that '48 campaign tour are the two things which the airplane does not have—the back platform and the whistle-stop.

On the other hand, some argue, the important thing is getting to a lot of places, not how you get there. Flying just means that you get to more of the big cities than the small ones.

The difference in cost between train and air travel is not a factor to the national committees which foot the bill. The method of figuring the cost of a special train is extremely complicated. But, all things considered, it is probably a little cheaper to fly.

The candidate and his helpers, a total of about 30 persons, can move in one four-engine plane. The press, TV and radio people follow in one or two other planes, which they pay for themselves.

American Airlines, which has done most of the hauling so far, charges $2.00 per mile for its big DC-6. That price includes all food, with no charges for stops or for being on the ground overnight.

The cost per mile on a special train is 4½ cents per person. But that is figured on the basis of a minimum of 125 persons on the train. On top of this, passengers must pay additional for Pullman accommodations, food and tips.

The special Pullman car which a candidate usually rides in costs a minimum of $92 per day. There are still more charges for switching, air conditioning, and stopping for any length of time which requires special sanitary arrangements.

The one charge which you have on the plane and not on the train is for a hotel room. Practically all of the airlines will be used by the candidates and press some time during the campaign, although American has the cheapest rate.

United charges $2.25 a mile for its standard DC-6 and $2.50 a mile for its bigger DC-6B. Eastern is most expensive, with a cost of $2.95 per mile for its big Constellations.

Aside from cost, an argument rages among veteran newsmen and politicians who have accompanied previous campaigners, as to which mode of travel does most damage to boy and soul.

There are those who claim that the hotel and shower each night, during a plane tour, outweigh the advantages of train travel. But the other side holds that early morning rising, usually necessary to get to the plane, is a barbaric practice which you don't follow on the train.

CAUGHT CAT-NAPPING BETWEEN STOPS, Candidates Eisenhower (left) and Stevenson are using the airplane for campaigning more than it's ever been used before by any White House hopeful.

Old Sergeant Re-Enlists

NEW YORK (AP) — "I wouldn't know what to do with myself if I retired this early," says 57-year-old M. Sgt. Linsley S. Lewis, post sergeant major at Ft. Wadsworth, N. Y.

With only two breaks in service since he enlisted in 1912, Lewis has 36 years of service and recently re-enlisted. "I'm going to make it 40," he explained.

Recalling 1912 he said, "We came in at $15 a month, were fed on 21 cents a day and had to buy our own milk." Lewis, who spent 22 years in the infantry, is the father of five children. One of his sons, Sgt. Edward F. Lewis, is himself a veteran of 17 years Army service and was at Hickam Field during the Pearl Harbor attack.

Canada's Ripple Rock Defeats a Government

SWIRLING WATERS in Seymour Narrows, near Canada's Ripple Rock, look like this as flood tide begins. Rock creates one of the most dangerous tidal races in the world, defies even big ships.

By Francis Dickie
NEA Special Correspondent

VANCOUVER, B. C.—(NEA)—Hon. Alphonse Fournier, Minister of Public Works, finally shrugged his shoulders.

"My department has given up," he said.

And with his shrug, Fournier and the Canadian government conceded defeat. Ripple Rock, which stands in the Seymour Narrows between Vancouver Island and the Quadra Islands, was grimly triumphant over a nation. There was, Fournier said, no way to dispose of this menace.

From the $200,000,000-worth of Pacific Ocean shipping that yearly must pass through this main sealane, Ripple Rock takes a heavy toll in men, ships and cargoes.

The rock, 100 feet in diameter, lies nine feet below the low-tide mark—a hidden hazard to keels and propellers. Only at high tide are the narrows completely navigable.

* * *

But at high tide the rock sets up counter-currents in the fast-running water, relentlessly pulling ships to destruction. Gigantic whirlpools—40 feet across—churn about the rock, swallowing small craft and paralyzing large vessels.

In 150 years, Ripple Rock has numbered among its victims scows, yachts, fishing trawls, passenger ships, freighters and battleships.

Damage was estimated in the tens of millions of dollars and hundreds of lives were lost, but no move was made to destroy Ripple Rock. The British Admiralty had been plagued with disasters in the Seymour Narrows since 1792.

Thousands of shipping hours had been lost as vessels waited for calm waters, Boards of Trade, shipping companies, fishing unions and even the governments of Canada and the United States were stopped from touching Ripple Rock.

* * *

Each move met the same resistance: Vancouver Island residents would withdraw from the Canadian Dominion if the Rock were destroyed. Ripple Rock, they said, was an absolute necessity in supporting a 2000-foot bridge connecting Vancouver with the mainland.

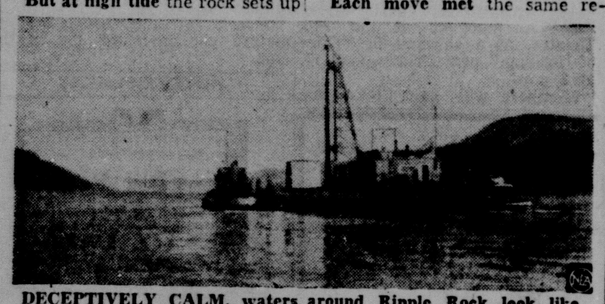
But by 1943 Vancouver's resistance had crumbled and the Canadian government appropriated half a million dollars to destroy the rocky monster. A barge with an 80-foot drill went into the battle, armed with 250 tons of anchor on steel cable as thick as a man's arm.

Within a week, however, the anchors had been swept down the roaring water as Ripple Rock snapped the cables. The barge, floundering like driftwood, could not keep the drills in place. Work was abandoned.

In 1945 Canada tried again. This time the drill was suspended above the foaming narrows. All Summer skilled riggers hovered over the rock, and by October they had to give up.

Since then attempts have been regularly followed by failure. Private contractors and shipping companies have offered to do the job. American engineers have come up to survey the situation.

But the Canadian government --just shrugs its shoulders. It is a very big rock.



DECEPTIVELY CALM, waters around Ripple Rock look like this only for short periods between tides. Drilling scow at work here had to give up after seven-month struggle against rock.

Better Hunting With Actually Fewer Quail

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.—(Special)—Hunters may have better hunting this year, even though the number of quail appears to have dropped considerably in drought parts of the state. That's the opinion of biologists after studying over summer field reports.

The conclusions are based on the fact that with the drought conditions this summer smaller broods have resulted from an already reduced breeding population.

The better hunting conditions are indicated because the broods came off earlier this summer, meaning that birds will be more mature at season opening November 10, and will behave better under the gun than did the late-hatched birds of last year.

According to Mel Steen, chief of the Conservation Commission's Fish & Game Division, "It all adds up to seemingly better hunting but with actually fewer quail." Steen said that some hunters may experience good success early in the season and wonder why the Commission reduced the bag limit. "This success may be short-lived," Steen said. "We are not sure just what will happen — we have not had a severe drought in the 12 years we have been conducting these annual quail studies and haven't enough background on which to base a prediction. But we do know this: we won't take a chance with Missouri's chief game species. We therefore recommended a reduced bag limit as a precautionary measure."

Western Missouri was most hard-hit by the drought, but the Ozarks border counties and the Ozark Plateau were also hard-hit. Northern Missouri seems to have sustained the least reduction in quail numbers.

The London, England, Library has six million volumes and the British Museum five million.

About half the British regular Army is now serving overseas.

Beauty Spots of Missouri Shown For Garden Club Council Meeting

The beauty spots of Missouri in all seasons were presented Friday afternoon to the Garden Club Women of Sedalia at the First Christian Church when Sedalians showed glimpses of picturesque scenes they were able to capture with their cameras.

The meeting began with a dessert luncheon which was under the direction of Mrs. J. W. Boger, assisted by the first vice-chairmen from all the clubs and the hostesses for the month from all of the clubs.

Mrs. L. H. Hodges, president of the Sedalia Garden Club Council, presided over the meeting and introduced Mrs. Roy Gerster, program chairman.

Mrs. Gerster first introduced Mrs. E. F. Yancey, special music chairman for the Garden Clubs, who gave a short talk on the closeness of music and flowers, and urged that everybody sing more. She then presented Mrs. T. E. Gasperson, whose two beautiful solos were in keeping with the occasion. The first was "The Flower Song", that Mrs. Gasperson said she first sang when she was a high school girl, and the second number was the old favorite, "Old Fashioned Garden."

Mrs. Gerster then introduced John Schlaffer, who showed many pictures taken on trips through Missouri. Particularly fond of bluffs, Mr. Schlaffer had a number of pictures of unusual bluffs. There were pictures of the Ozarks, the dam when the flood waters were high, the hills, trees, valleys, the lake when the wind was strong, showing the ripples of the water, and the blowing of the trees; the lake when it was calm.

Then Mr. Schlaffer went to the Christmas decorations made and displayed last season by the Garden Club women. The women had fun picking out whose Christmas arrangement was being shown on the screen.

Then it was back to the beauties of nature. Mr. Schlaffer showed Bothwell Lodge up on the high hill, the first snow of last year which caught the trees still in their bright autumn dress, then Missouri in Indian Summer.

From that Mr. Schlaffer showed roses — many with dew on them, his sister, Miss Mary Ann Schlaffer holding the stalk of white lilies grown by them on which there were a hundred blossoms. Then he went to the old Anderson home at Lexington, and many of the rooms which still have the original furniture. There were pictures of horses, taken at the Missouri State Fair, birds in the trees and then, he ended with the Missouri sunsets, scenes with the rosy glow of late summer evenings.

Oscar DeWolf then showed Missouri as he found it from ice and snow to ice and snow — a year of beauty, starting with sunlight on the ice trees, shrubs, and wires. He put in scenes that showed the destruction of the ice, too, with broken limbs of trees all over the streets. He showed a picnic grounds in the snow and many other snow scenes.

Then there was the first peep of spring in the Ozarks, and back to Sedalia where he had pictures of spring gardens with forsythe, yellow daffodils and red tulips — the magnolias on Third, the Garden Clubs project, starting with the first sign of the opening magnolia buds on through to the trees in full bloom.

He had spring in the Ozarks with redbud, wild crab apple blossoms and cedar — dogwood and other pictures of pink blossoms against the bright blue sky. He also had the rhododendron in the yard of Dr. and Mrs. Boger.

Then there were pictures of iris gardens, the spring flower show, roses in June in full bloom on porches, arbors, and in beds.

There were lilies too, then summer gardens gay with color, zinnas that have not yet been named, pictures of the State Fair Highway Gardens, the roadside park at Otterville — the brilliant maples over town in autumn, and then a sunset against which trees were silhouetted.

Mrs. Leland Hoback of Windsor, president of the Windsor Club, showed pictures of the Ozarks, of Windsor and of various flowers including one of dahlias.

Mrs. A. W. Klang was the last to show pictures, and she had some very lovely ones of the Paul Scarlet roses at Liberty Park, the magnolias, the hawthorne, the Missouri State flower, tulips, blaze roses, rose arrangements and finally a picture of herself standing by a white dogwood tree holding a little white dog — and, said Mrs. Klang, "She picked the little white dog off of the dogwood tree", and the picture looked like she might have done just that.

As a setting for the meeting many members had brought arrangements of flowers in fall shades that included asters, chrysanthemums and many others. The table arrangement was a large reed cornucopia filled with the harvest of fall fruits and vegetables. At either end were three large green hedge apples holding lighted, deep yellow candles.

Miss Loydean Hayes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hayes, 311 North Grand, whose engagement and approaching marriage to Mr. Lawrence Roy Morrison, Kansas City, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Morrison, Jamestown, is announced today by her parents. The marriage will take place in December.

Miss Delores McMullin, Beaman, whose engagement and approaching marriage to Mr. Larry Waller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Waller, New Franklin, is announced today. The wedding will take place Oct. 19 at New Franklin. They will be at home after that date at 3018 Woodland, Kansas City.

Miss Phyllis Bush, who will be married this month to Mr. F. W. Tennyson, was honored Friday evening with a personal shower given at the home of Mrs. Pearl Stuart, 218 South Quincy.

Games were played during the evening with awards going to Mrs. Ike L. Warren and Miss Phyllis Bush.

The dining table, where guests were served, was covered with a lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of white and yellow chrysanthemums and yellow roses. On either side were burning yellow tapers.

Guests were: Miss Bush, her sister, Mrs. Gordon Stauffacher, Mrs. Loren Attebury, Mrs. Lena Boothe, Mrs. Dale Johnson, Mrs. Harry Nagel, Mrs. Edwin Patrick, Miss Pearl Rose, Mrs. Ike L. Warren, Mrs. John Welch and Mrs. Leonard Woolery. Miss Bush's sister, Mrs. Levina Mason, of Kansas City, was unable to attend but sent a gift.

Tigers Can't Get Going

SMU Line Stops MU Cold; Ponies Nab 25-7 Victory

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 11 — (AP) — Southern Methodist University's Mustangs got their attack rolling for the first time this season and coupled with an alert defense smeared Missouri's erratic Tigers, 25 to 7, in a non-conference football game today.

An estimated 25,000 fans looked on in perfect football weather as the Southern Conference Mustangs knocked out two long touchdowns in the second quarter for a 12 to 0 halftime lead then struck for single scores in each of the last two quarters.

Beaten by two powers in their first two games, Duke and Georgia Tech, SMU was not to be denied this time. Their offensive heroes were many. Fullback Al Hansen, who made two of the winner's touchdowns, scored first in the second quarter after a drive of 57 yards. The second one of the period was made by Roy Pace diving over from the one to climax a 69-yard drive.

When Missouri junked its pet split T formation for the wide spread passing plays, the Mustangs gave up the one and only Tiger touchdown of the day.

Scardino Pass Clicks

With Tony Scardino passing expertly, the Tigers cashed in on a 26-yard toss into the end zone to former Army star Bill Roekamp. Paul Fuchs converted to end Missouri's scoring.

Except for the Missouri touchdown, which cut SMU's lead to 12-7, the Mustangs were on top and well ahead all the way. With the chips down SMU pushed Missouri back to its one and turned a short Tiger punt into the clinching touchdown. Then with Sam Stollenwerck's conversion, built its lead to 19 to 7.

Hansen scored the third Mustang touchdown from the one foot line on fourth down. The last one, in the fourth period came with Bill Forester cracking across from the three.

The SMU defense, rugged up front and with Bill Crisler playing a great game in the secondary, met the challenge of several Missouri threats and met the test on all except one scoring drive.

SMU pushed Missouri back to the six after the Tigers had bulged down to the three late in the second half.

MU Passes Backfire

Missouri lost the ball four times on pass interception and one of them came deep in SMU territory, another in the end zone. SMU had a big advantage in rushing, picking up 241 yards to 67 for Missouri. The Tigers excelled in air yardage 209 to 101.

Missouri lost its chance of getting the jump early in the game. Ed Merrifield intercepted Duane Nutt's pass on the SMU 49 yard line. Nick Carras and Rowekamp bulled to the 19 where the Tigers took to the air and fizzled.

The passing of Scardino, a sophomore from Kansas City, was Missouri's only real offensive threat. He completed 11 of 25 tosses for 196 yards and had at least three other good pitches dropped by his receivers.

UCLA Stomps Rice By A 20-0 Score

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 11 (AP)—Ready Teddy Marleski, who connected with two touchdown strikes, combined with a superb defensive wrecking crew today to shoot down the Rice Owls in an intersectional football game by a 20 to 0 score.

Tiny Ted, 155-pound tailback, sent the Pacific Coast Conference Uclans into a 13-0 lead at the half with two touchdown throws, one for 12 yards to giant right end, Ike Jones.

The win was the fourth straight this season for Coach Red Sanders' Bruins, and their second over a Southwest Conference invader. Two weeks ago UCLA shut out Texas Christian, 14-0.

Yank Officials Hurt In 3-Car Accident

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Oct. 11 —Two officials of the New York Yankees were injured early today in a three - car crackup on the Hutchinson River Parkway near Bronxville in Westchester County.

H. Roy Hamey, 50, assistant to the general manager of the Yankees, suffered a fractured leg. Aaron Lanier, 47, comptroller of the ball club, a passenger in Hamey's car, sustained a possible fractured skull.

Ford Frick Reveals Series Share Values

NEW YORK Oct. 11 (AP) — Ford Frick, baseball commissioner, said today each full World Series share voted by the champion New York Yankees was worth $6,026.32. Each full share voted by the losing Brooklyn Dodgers was worth $4,200.64.

Frick did not reveal how many shares each of the clubs had voted.

Ohio State Rubs Badger Rating Off The Slate

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 11 (AP)—Ohio State's once-beaten Bucks hit the heigths of gridiron greatness today as they defeated top-ranked Wisconsin, 23-14, and trampled the Badgers' Rose Bowl hopes deep in the cleat-torn sod of Ohio stadium.

A stunned crowd of 80,345 watched the underdog Buckeyes outplay the Badgers in practically all departments, halting five Wisconsin drives inside the 20-yard line with its stubborn defense.

Ohio was regarded as the biggest stumbling block in Wisconsin's path to Pasadena and the Bucks proved too big for the visitors to hurdle. The Badgers entered the contest heavy favorites, bearing the banner of the nation's No. 1 team, but the unimpressed Ohioans took charge in the opening minutes and maintained control to win going away.

The Buckeyes left little doubt of their superiority. They marched 88 yards in 12 plays for a touchdown in the first period, 64 yards in six plays for a third-period touchdown, and 55 yards in 11 plays for a fourth-period score. They tacked on a 68-yard drive in eight plays late in the game for a field goal to clinch the verdict.

Lexington Nips Hubbard, 8-6

A safety in the third quarter provided the edge for an 8-6 homecoming victory for Lexington over the Hubbard Tigers Friday night at Lexington.

Sedalia jumped into a 6-0 lead in the first quarter on left end Aubrey Chism's 55-yard runback of an intercepted pass.

This lead heeld-up untid midpoint of the 3rd period. After Hubbard had stopped Lexington on the 8-yard line, the hometown line smothered Sedalia quarterback Howard Herndon in the end zone for the 2-point safety, which eventually gave Lexington the triumph.

The final blow fell on the first play of the final quarter as Lexington left half Walter Mayberry sped around the Hubbard end for six points and the ball game.

More than 400 attended the Lexington homecoming celebration.

Sooners Bury Texas, 49-20

DALLAS, Oct. 11 (AP)—Oklahoma shocked fumbling, bumbling Texas with four touchdowns in the first period and went on to win this storied intersectional football game 49-20 today in one of the greatest offensive shows the Cotton Bowl ever saw.

Eddie Crowder leveled the Texas defenses with slingshot passing and Buddy Leake, Billy Vessels and Buc McPhail riddled the Longhorn line as the Sooners slashed and tore in a display of power and finesse that awed the 75,504 fans jammed into the big saucer.

Fumbles set up two Oklahoma touchdowns in the opening period and Crowder's mighty throwing counted for the other two. Texas came back gamely and actually dominated the second period but it was a foregone conclusion from the first six minutes that they were in over their neck.

T. Jones rallied the Texas forces in the final period to pass for two touchdowns but the Sooners more than matched it with three.

It was the most points ever scored in a Texas-Oklahoma game and the most Oklahoma had scored since 1908 when the Sooners beat Texas 50-0. It was the most decisive defeat suffered by a Texas team since 1944 when Randolph Field beat the Longhorns 42-7.

McPhail hammered and smashed through the big but futile Texas line for 149 yards as leading ground-gainer of the day. Vessels made 106 yards and Lake 74.

Oklahoma rolled up 296 yards on the ground and 133 in the air to 146 on the ground and 158 passing for Texas.

Texas couldn't do anything right in that disastrous first period while Oklahoma could do nothing wrong.

Navy Passing Sinks William And Mary

ANNAPOLIS, Oct. 11 (AP)—The ramparts of Navy's defense were unassailable again today while quarterback Bob Cameron's spectacular passing winged the undefeated Middies to a 14-0 victory over William and Mary.

By racking up three straight victories this year, Navy equalled the most games won by a Middie football team in one season since 1945.

Counting victories in last year's final two games, Coach Eddie Erdelatz's team has a string of five straight for its longest in the post-war era.

Archers Open Deer Season This Thursday

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 11 (AP)—Missouri's bow and arrow hunters can hunt whitetail deer — either bucks or does — beginning Thursday.

And they can't say the State Conservation Commission isn't doing it's part in trying to help them. The archery deer season will be open for 16 days this year in five Eastern Missouri counties—all heavily populated with deer.

That's the longest season and the biggest archery hunting area permitted in Missouri since back in the days of the Indians — when any game was fair game any day or night.

Bad luck has plagued bow and arrow hunters in Missouri's deer woods. Back in 1944 a Sedalian was credited with killing a buck deer with an arrow—during the regular hunting season. But the only deer kill by an archer since was in 1950, and by a woman. Mrs. Lucia Wahl of St. Louis bagged an eight-point buck in the Bee Creek area of Tanty County that year.

The season this year will run from Thursday, Oct. 16, through Friday, Oct. 31. Shooting hours will be from 6:30 p.m. Each hunter is entitled to one buck or one doe. The archery deer season holds in Ste. Genevieve, Crawford, Washington, Jefferson and Franklin counties.

Archers who fail then can still take their chances during the regular gun season from Nov. 6 through Nov. 8, through the entire 42-county deer hunting area.

Scarbath Guides Maryland's Win Over Georgia

ATHENS, Ga., Oct 11 (AP)—A dose of pure split T poison concocted by Jack Scarbath and Chet Hanulak, the deception masters of Maryland, broke apart Georgia defenses today and gave the Terrapins their 16th consecutive football victory, 37-0.

The nationally fourth ranked Marylanders were expected to win, bu the mighty surge they put on against the better-than-average Georgia eleven was a true surprise. The game was supposed to go to Maryland by a touchdown not by any such score as this. Earlier this season against Missouri and Auburn, Maryland misfired, spluttered and barely won. Last week the Terps got going with strength against Clemson. Today they were devastating.

Valley Smothers Central, 33-0

MARSHALL, Mo., Oct. 10—(AP) Fullback Cliff Hoppe ran through tackle for two touchdowns and passed 20 yards for a third as Missouri Valley College defeated Central College of Fayette, 33-0, in an MCAU conference game tonight.

Hoppe took the ball from the eight and smashed through Central's line for the first score shortly after the opening whistle. In the second quarter he drove his way across from the one after a sustained drive.

He passed to Bob Bailey who scored in the third quarter. The last Missouri Valley score came on a 13 yard pass from Clarke Wing to Phil Short. Richard Oyass converted for two extra points, and Ben McAllister sailed the ball across the goal for a third.

Harvard Too Strong For St. Louis Team

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 11 (AP) — Harvard's current football pride, the dependable and hard working Dick Clasby, turned in a 96-yard scoring run and fired a 28-yard touchdown pass to winger Paul Crowley today as Harvard rolled from a 420 victory against Washington University of St. Louis.

While the Crimson was turning in its first football shutout since its 1947 team topped a woeful Holy Cross squad 13-0, their guests from west of the Mississippi refused three easy touchdown chances, one in the second period and the others in the finale.

Johnny Culver, the heavy duty fullback, accounted for two of the Harvard touchdowns, on six and four yard slams, to put the game on ice in the second period.

Georgia Tech Adds To Victory String

ATLANTA, Oct. 11 (AP) — Payoff surges by air and ground in the waning seconds of the second and fourth quarters gave Georgia Tech a 14-0 victory over Tulane today. The victory ran Tech's unbeaten streak to 18 games stretching across three seasons.

Tech added lustre to its rating as the nation's fifth best bootball machine in The Associated Press poll by counting on a pass from Bill Birgman to giant end Buck Martin with 57 seconds remaining in the first half. The precision-polished Yellowjackets then struck for a score via the ground with 41 seconds left in the game when reserve fullback Jimmy Johnson bulled across from the 2.

Rolla Miners Stay Here Friday Night

Rolla Miners, who took a 20-14 victory from the Warrensburg Mules Friday night, stayed that night at the Bothwell Hotel, leaving Saturday morning to return to the campus in Rolla. The trip was without incident, save for the great difficulty the bus driver experienced in getting his vehicle out of the Bothwell parking lot Saturday morning. He had to 'jigger" back and fourth more than a dozen times before the bus could be driven away.

Sports Scraps

(By D. Kelly Scruton)

SMITH-COTTON'S three-letter sports athlete, Floyd Burton, whose future in athletics at the University of Missouri came to an abrupt end, the past week with Burton leaving school unexpectedly, Tuesday. The reason given at the University was "I just don't like going to school."

This is hard to believe—but the University is fast time, with grades being a must, and studying hard and football practice all crammed in with so few hours to do it in. Yet Burton was here only a few days ago and indicated to me he was quitting and planned on going to the Central Missouri State College. I believe if Burton does go to Warrensburg it will be a big help to him in getting over the first hump—that first year in college.

Chauncey Simpson, coach of Missouri's Freshman football team, reported he checked Burton out Wednesday morning. He said Burton gave no indication of returning to Missouri or any other school.

Burton, a 6-foot, 170 pounder, played left halfback on Smith-Cotton's ball club. He went to the University well-recommended, having won seven letters at Smith-Cotton, three in football, two in basketball and two in track. He was an All-State man in track in both high and low hurdles, and was an all-conference and all_state honorable mention athlete in football.

At Missouri he made the Freshman squad. Listed as an offensive halfback, and saw action in an intra-squad game last Friday, a week. Simpson reported he planned on Burton when the Frosh scrimmaged the Missouri B-team the day after he quit.

If Floyd couldn't take it at Missouri, he isn't the only one who has had a hard go there. We hope he takes up studies at CMSC and carries on with the Mules.

WELL Missouri took a well delivered trouncing by the Southern Methodist boys from Texas, Saturday. We had picked Missouri to win—loyalty to Missouri, and it was a little shaky—but after that game, there need be no alibies on our part. We'll let the M. U. Tigers do the alibing.

From where I saw it, Missouri was just about two steps behind SMU in every department. There appeared to be a lot of lead to me down there on the gridiron, and it wasn't any fault of Coach Don Faurot, there's no one to blame except the players themselves.

But putting the "needling aside" we might just as well admit it, Southern Methodist had a whale of a team on the field Saturday and they looked mighty, mighty good.

I suppose Faurot had a good reason for pulling Charlie Phillips out of the game, but those two tackles he missed were made up on three or four others which were plenty neat and stopped the Mustangs.

Before getting too critical, let's wait and see what comes around next Saturday down at Stillwater with Oklahoma A & M.

SEDALIA Moose Club is making a venture in the fight game, taking over the sponsorship of the Golden Gloves. Some thirty-odd boys have been working out at the Moose Club and there appears as if there will be some good material turned out for amateur boxing.

The Moose is making preliminary plans to hold fights each week, if possible, and follow the same system that was sponsored here several years ago. They plan on team matches with surrounding Golden Glove towns, such as Jefferson City, Springfield, Chillicothe, Columbia, Kansas City and others.

It is reported there are several amateur boxers up at the Sedalia Air Force Base. If they are anything like what came to Sedalia from Ft. Leonard Wood back in the early 40's, then Sedalia should have a good strong team for the Kansas City's tournament.

Kansas Tunes-Up For Sooners By Mauling Iowa State, 43-0

AMES, Ia., Oct 11 (AP)—Potent Kansas whipped through fumbling Iowa State 43-0 today in a brisk warmup for the Jayhawk's duel with Oklahoma next Saturday in a battle that may determine the Big Seven football champion.

Iowa State wasn't even a close match for the Jayhawks who rolled up their biggest margin over the Cyclones in the 32 game series which had its inception way back in 1898.

Kansas, picking up its second conference victory, sped to a 20-0 halftime margin, swelled its lead to 36 points at the three quarter mark and let the reserves add a final touchdown with 42 seconds on the clock.

The third quarter surge got its start with a 73-yard touchdown run on a punt return by Gil Reich, the US Military Academy transferee. Gil caught the ball near the east sidelines, cut across field behind vicious blocking and was away with gusto down the opposite sidelines where two final would-be tacklers were swept aside by escorting Jayhawks.

Iowa State lost its only real scoring opportunity in the second period when Bo Walker fumbled after a 6-yard dash. Hal Cleavinger snatched the ball in the air and was downed on the Kansas four. That was one of five Iowa State fumbles in the first half-time recovered by Kansas.

Cleavinger, a defensive back, nabbed three of the Iowa State miscues, one recovery leading to a Kansas touchdown and the Walker grab perhaps saving the Jayhawks from not enjoying a shutout.

The busy Cleavinger also intercepted a pass on the Iowa State 45 and ran 10 yards to set up the third Kansas touchdown.

Kansas, assigned a ninth-place in the Associated Press national poll this week, smashed Iowa State for 270 yards rushing and 196 passing. The Cyclones got only 93 yards rushing and 66 passing.

Michigan State Romps To 18th Straight Win

EAST LANSING, Mich., Oct. 11 (AP) — Michigan State added a sparkling pass attack to its bruisingly effective running game to overpower Texas A and M, 48 to 6, here today for the 18th straight win by the Spartans.

A stadium crowd of 49,123 and a nationwide television audience saw Michigan State power to a 21-6 lead at the half and add four more touchdowns in the final quarter for the win.

The game did not go as expected in that the only Texas A and M score, in the second period, came on a running play instead of a pass.

Michigan State quarterback Tom Yewcic carried off the passing honors with his most sensational throw—a pitch to end Ellis Duckett that went 81 yards for a score.

Rolla Rallies To Edge Mules By 20-14 Count

WARRENSBURG, Mo., Oct. 10 (AP)—Coming out from a two touchdown half-time deficity, Rolla Mines scored twice in the third quarter and again in the fourth to defeat Warrensburg College 20-14 in an MIAA game tonight.

Keith Smith, Rolla halfback, went off tackle for the winning tuochdown early in the fourth quarter. Center Jim Schildmeyer and quarterback Bob Hample each scored once in the third quarter. Fred Smith kicked both extra points.

Warrensburg's two touchdowns in the first half were made on a fumble and an intercepted pass. Dewey Cundiff scored after right end Herb Ford recovered a blocked kick on the 11 yard line. Don Slazinik went over from the 13 yard stripe after Ford recovered a fumble on the Rolla 18. Both conversions were by Jay Cornell.

Pete Vann Paces An Army Triumph

WEST POINT, N.Y., Oct. 11 (AP) —Pete Vann, a sophomore quarterback in the tradition of Army's great football field generals, led the Cadets to an amazing 37-7 victory today over Dartmouth.

This is the highest score run up by Army since the cribbing dismissals riddled the squad before the 1951 season and it was achieved over a Dartmouth team that last week held Penn to 7-0.

The flashing Army offense, looking like Coach Earl Blaik's irresistable teams of a few years ago, was concentrated entirely in the first half.

Pitt Stuns Notre Dame With Its Early Power

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 11 (AP) —Pittsburgh's underdog Panthers stunned Notre Dame, a two-touchdown favorite, with a vicious first period clawing and then staved off the furious Irish, 22-19, in a football thriller today.

It was Pitt's first victory over Notre Dame since 1937 following eight straight Irish wins. Notre Dame was eighth ranked in The Associated Press poll.

Feller Fan Meets Idol—In A Wreck

CLEVELAND, Oct. 11 (AP)—Plumber George Ressler of Orrville, O., always wanted to meet Bob Feller, Cleveland Indians pitching veteran. Today he did. His car and Feller's station wagon collided at Prospect avenue and East 46th street. Neither was hurt.

"I always wanted to meet you," Ressler told Feller. "But not this way."

Huskers Maul Kansas State; Reynolds Hurt

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 11 (AP)—All-America Bob Reynolds swirled around Kansas State's end to put the ball in position for Nebraska's second touchdown today, then walked off the field with a shoulder injury that stunned one of the biggest crowds ever to see a Nebraska football game.

Nebraska won, 27 to 14, but the injury to Reynolds left the crowd of more than 39,000 without joy.

Reynolds told an Associated Press reporter in the dressing room during the fourth period that he believed he had only suffered a badly bruised shoulder.

But later, after the game, Coach Bill Glassford told reporters that Reynolds suffered a separation of the left shoulder and would be out for the rest of the season.

It was in 1950 that Reynolds made the Associated Press All-America team as a sophomore. But he was on the bench most of last season with a right shoulder separation suffered just before the season started.

Bad Luck Haunts Him

When in mid-season he re-entered play, lime was kicked into his eye in his first start and he was benched again until the last game. In high school, as a sophomore, he had suffered a broken leg.

Reynolds was hurt today when he swept around end for 10 yards to the Kansas State 5-yard line. He got up shrugging his shoulder and trudged to the sidelines as the huge crowd and 3,500 high school band members sat in dead silence.

A physician made a quick examination. Then Coach Bill Glassford arose, kicked vigorously at a sideline marker as Reynolds started toward the dressing room.

A dejected figure, the crack Nebraska ball carrier walked slowly, pausing several times to look back at the action on the field before disappearing into the field house.

His 10-yard run to the Kansas State 5-yard line put the ball in position for the touchdown that sent Nebraska ahead in the game to stay. Fullback Ray Novak hammered over from the 2 and Dennis Korinek, replacing Reynolds as the kicker, converted to give Nabraska a 14-7 lead.

Rule Infractions Hurt Cats

Nebraska travelled 71 yards for that touchdown, helped greatly by a pass interference ruling on Dick Towers that cost Kansas State 36 yards. The next time Nebraska got the ball, the Huskers went 55 yards this time helped by a 15-yard penalty for roughness against Kansas State.

Bordogna scored this touchdown from the 1-yard line and Korinek converted to make it 21-7 at the half.

Both Kansas State touchdowns were made by end Jack McShulskis. The fine Kansas State receiver left the game on a stretcher, after suffering a knee injury in the third period.

Penn Defense Snaps Princeton's Streak

PRINCETON, N.J., Oct., 11 (AP) —The bulldozer rushes of Joe Varaitis and the pass-snatching wizardy of the Penn defense shattered football's longest winning streak today as Pennsylvania defeated Princeton 13 to 7.

Princeton had run up a string of 24 straight victories since losing to Cornell Oct. 22, 1949. But without the men like Dick Kazmaier who made that string possible, the Tiger offense sputtered and stalled when it got within scoring range today.

Tigers Outclass Hannibal

Dave Lingle Runs Wild In 28-7 Win Over CMC Opponent

Displaying their sharpest downfield blocking of the season, Ralph Dow's Smith-Cotton Tigers blasted out a 28-7 Central Missouri Conference victory over the Hannibal Pirates in a bruising game played Friday in Hannibal.

And to make the victory more sweet, Sedalia unveiled the long-distance running threat so badly needed in previous encounters, as right halfback Dave Lingle split the Hannibal defense for three trips of more than 50 yards.

This gives Sedalia the second barrel of an inside-outside ground game—the inside duties once again being capably handled Friday by fullback Tom Ferguson, who counted the Bengals' fourth TD and booted four consecutive extra-points.

Lingle gave a preview of what was going to happen shortly after the midpoint of the first quarter when, with a sudden burst of speed, he swung off left tackle for 51 yards and a touchdown. Ferguson booted the extra point.

Bennett, Case Injured

In the run "Buck" Bennett made a beautiful block, but on the play he struck his right forehead and had to sit out the rest of the game. Lingle was moved over to quarterback position and Bobby Case went in for Lingle.

During the second quarter Case suffered a severely bruised left hip and he was removed from the game.

A 68-yard punt return, in the last 2 minutes and 50 seconds of the first half, brought the fans to their feet as Lingle went 68-yards for his second score. Ferguson again kicked the ball between the goal posts.

In the third quarter Ferguson turned a long drive by the Tigers up the gridiron into a paying endeavor as he plowed through the line for 1-yard and a touchdown. He again kicked the extra point.

Lingle Repeats Long Run

In the final period Lingle again turned the Hannibal end for a 50-yard sprint and a touchdown. Again Ferguson booted the extra point.

The lone Pirates touchdown came near the end of the third quarter on a two-yard plunge by Bobby Youle. Hannibal added the extra point from placement. A flurry of passes set up the Hannibal score.

Ferguson had his kicking toe working on the after touchdown kicks. He kicked five of them, one being called back when the Tigers were offside. The penalty didn't bother the big fullback and he went ahead and repeated his performance.

The victory gives the Tigers two Central Missouri Conference victories. They also defeated the Kemper Military Academy.

Next Friday Smith-Cotton journeys to Columbia where they tangle with the Hickman High School Kewpies in another CMC tilt.

The Tigers passing attack wasn't too sharp against the Pirates. Coach Ralph "Stub" Dow has promised the Tigers some hard workouts in the aerial department this coming week.

Hickman, fresh from a victory over Jefferson City, is confident the Tigers skin will be hanging in their school after Friday.

House Links Party Leader In Suit Stall

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP)—The name of Col. Jacob M. Arvey, Chicago Democratic leader, was linked by House investigators today with an attempt to forestall a federal suit against the Pabst Brewing Company last year.

But top members of a House judiciary subcommittee did not define the importance of Arvey's role or say whether they thought it improper.

Chairman Chelf (D-Ky) and Rep. Keating (R-NY) said in a joint statement the Washington attorney representing Pabst had tried to impress George A. Larrick, deputy food and drug commissioner, by saying Arvey had sent him.

Larrick told the subcommittee that at first Arvey's name made no impression on him, and after he recognized it, "I was influenced—to be more careful than ever."

The Chelf-Keating statement also said that Arvey telephoned the Pabst attorney, Raoul Berger, at least twice for Berger's evaluation of criminal proceedings which the government filed against the company.

Berger told the subcommittee that Arvey was a long-standing personal friend, that he frequently consulted Arvey on the current political campaign and other matters and had done some legal work for him in Chicago.

Arvey, Democratic national committeeman from Illinois and a backer of Gov. Adlai Stevenson for president, was not immediately available for comment.

The Chelf committee explored the Pabst case as part of its investigation into the Justice Department. It summoned Berger and Larrick to a special hearing Friday for questioning about Arvey's connection with the case and released their testimony today.

Food and drug officials condemned four carloads of corn grits, a raw material for beer, after an inspector reported finding insects and rodent "filth" last June in a Pabst plant at Peoria, Ill.

The Pabst concern issued a statement this week saying that its Milwaukee laboratory had not yet inspected the grain at the time the government stepped in. It said its laboratories constantly check such matters and that "destruction of faulty material is routine."

He and his wife left Friday for San Antonio.

Natural Gas Supply Boosted Into Marshall

The supply of natural gas to the City of Marshall, which city is presently served by Missouri Public Service Company, has been increased approximately 2½ times by the completion of a new six inch transmission line into that city.

The new line interconnects with the Cities Service Pipeline Company's transmission line at a point 19½ miles west of Marshall and replaces a four inch line which has previously served that city.

A dedication ceremony this week was attended by officials of the Cities Service Gas Company; officials of Missouri Public Service Company in the area; officials of the City of Marshall; and representatives from the Marshall Chamber of Commerce.

Richard C. Green, vice-president of Missouri Public Service Company, Warrensburg, and Mayor Lee Hayob of Marshall opened the valve at 10:30 a.m. Oct. 7, releasing the new gas supply into the city's distribution mains. Cities Service Gas Company was represented by L. J. Willard, vice-president, and Carl Taylor, executive assistant, both from Oklahoma City.

Sgt. Chancellor Graduates In Army

Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind.,—Sgt. James M. Chancellor, son of Mrs. Sylvia Chancellor, 1705 South Osage, was graduated Oct. 10 from the Advanced Army Administration course taught at The Adjutant General's School here.

The nine-weeks course trains enlisted specialists to supervise operations in an administrative unit in a military headquarters or office. Students receive 348 hours of instruction in such subjects as management, general administration, personnel administration, typing and administrative problems.

Sergeant Chancellor is a veteran of 18 months service in Korea.

His wife, Mrs. Ruby Chancellor is living in Indianapolis.

Because the drivers of early-day Conestoga wagons smoked long, thin cigars, it is believed the abbreviated name of the wagons, "stogie," became the name of the cigars.

Chorus Girl Steals Show At Columbia

COLUMBIA, Oct. 11 (AP) — Bek Stiner, glamour blonde from the chorus line of New York's Copacabana Club, who stepped right out of Milton Canliff's adventure strip, Steve Canyon, in a real life coming home queen at the university of Missouri, today almost stole the show from the Missouri-Southern Methodist football game.

Miss Stiner, who posed for Canliff's new feminine character in a north woods sequence of the adventure strip, was greeted by hundreds of MU students when she stepped off an air liner at Municipal Airport last night, and she was the magnet for one of the biggest pep rallies Missouri students have staged a few minutes later.

Air ROTC students made her an honorary colonel.

Miss Stiner continued today a three-day whirl of activity about the campus, and this afternoon was to be honored between the halves of the Tiger-Mustang game. That's where she will take off the trench coat she wears in the adventure strip—and which she has worn since she left New York yesterday morning for Columbia. Under the coat is one of the original fashion creations which she has modelled in New York.

Tonight Miss Stiner will reign as queen of an all-student dance at Rothwell gymnasium, and tomorrow she will be tne guest of a fraternity at dinner. She will depart for New York tomorrow afternoon.

The names of Roy L. Dr. L. Avery Fleming of the Central Missouri State College Faculty, was in charge of the service.

Knox, Warrensburg, managing secretary; Mrs. Mildred Lass, Warrensburg, treasurer; and W. L. Denney, Odessa, George A. Riley, California, William F. Knox, and Edgar Hinote, Osceola, executive committee members.

Speaker at the concluding general session was Chancellor Carl C. Bracy, Nebraska Wesleyan University at Lincoln, who spoke on the subject "Education for Fundamentals."

During the one day meeting teachers attended four divisional sessions and 17 departmental meetings and heard three major addresses in Hendricks Hall.

Police Hunt Two In California After Brutal Slaying Of Four

CHESTER, Calif., Oct. 11 (AP)—A state-wide search was on tonight for two men in a Buick suspected of brutally beating to death a groceryman and three children, stuffing the bodies into the trunk of the vicmtim's car and fleeing with loot exceeding $7,000.

An all-points bulletin was sent to police agencies throughout California after the two in the Buick were reported seen trailing the groceryman Friday as he was on the way to a bank.

The bodies of the dead were found today in the trunk of a car on a lonely logging road six miles east of Chester.

A fourth child found alive but unconscious, was reported in "fair condition, suffering mostly from exereme shock."

Missing was the $7,100 which the grocer had obtained Friday aternoon from the Bank of America at Westwood, 11 miles east of this Northeast California mountain town.

Sheriff M. H. Schooler at first theorized that the crime was committed by someone who knew the children, killed them and sought to prevent identification.

A few hours later, however, the sheriff's office put out an all-points bulletin for apprehension of two men in a black Buick with an unknown Arkansas license. The description o them was vague.

The only given basis for suspecting them was that they were reported to have followed the victims on the drive to the bank.

The dead were Gard Young, 43, his daughters, Judy, 6, Jean, 7, and a neighbor boy, Michael Saile, 4.

The Saile boy and his stenographer mother, Rosemary, lived in an apartment behind the Young home.

Young's third daughter, Sondra Gay, 3½, was taken to the Westwood Hospital. At first it was reported that she might not survive, but attendants later said her condition was fair.

Opti-Mrs. Club Names Committees For Year's Work

The Opti-Mrs. Club met Thursday night, Oct. 9, at the home of Mrs. Frank Mehl, 403 West Tenth, at which time reports were given by all of the chairmen.

A report of the girls work project for the year was discussed and Mrs. H. O. Wilbur, president, told of the rummage sale which was quite a success.

Two new members were welcomed into the club, Mrs. Clyde Swafford and Mrs. J. W. Watts.

The following committees for the year were appointed: membership, Mrs. Ben Klein, chairman, Mrs. Ed Ringen and Mrs. Clyde Swafford; program chairmen, Mrs. Gene Kent, Mrs. Dimmitt Hoffman and Mrs. Fred Bock; welfare, Mrs. Clinton Black, chairman, Mrs. Cecil Glenn and Mrs. J. W. Watts; publicity, Mrs. Jerry Trotter, chairman, Mrs. Lawrence Ward; finance committee, Mrs. Jerry Drennon, Mrs. Frank Mehl and Mrs. Q. A. Morgan; girls work, Mrs. Kenneth Holdren, Mrs. W. A. Smith, and Mrs. H. O. Wilburn; transportation, Mrs. Gerald Cecil, chairman, and Mrs. Edith Rissler.

Following the business meeting a demonstration of textile painting was given by Mrs. Paul Mowrey of Green Ridge.

A motion was made to assist with the speech correction class if more equipment is needed.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by Mrs. Mehl and Mrs. Clinton Black, cohostesses.

Krafts Adopt Daughter

Mr. and Mrs. William L. Kraft, Hughesville, adopted a 3-months-old girl Friday afternoon. They have named her Karen Ann. This is their second child. The Krafts have a 2-year-old adopted son, Robert William.

Demo Party Lauded Friday At Spring Fork

"The Democratic Administration has raised man above the almighty dollar" Judge E. W. Couey told a capacity crowd at Spring Fork Friday night. Judge Couey, member of the State Parole Board, and Henry Salveter, Sedalia attorney, teamed up to tell the crowd what had been accomplished during the last 20 years and what they could expect from "one of the finest tickets that has ever been presented to the voters of Pettis County and the nation."

"If I tried to tell you all the reasons why you should vote the Democratic ticket," Judge Couey said, "it would take all night. There is every reason in the world for you to do so. Never in the history of all mankind has any country in the world found its people in the favorable position that we enjoy today. Never in the history of all mankind has any nation had so much to be thankful for, or had so much with which to help its fellow man."

In the absence of Mike Donahoe, committeeman, and at the request of Mrs. John Paul, committeewoman, James E. Durley, chairman of the county Democratic committee, presided over the meeting. Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sands entertained the overflow crowd with several songs, and then Mr. Durley introduced the following candidates:

For judge of western district, Mrs. Louise O'Rear; for representative, Bill Marlin; for prosecuting attorney, Harold W. Barrick; for sheriff, John F. Taylor; for public administrator, Lawrence P. Howard: for assessor, Jerry Trotter.

Mr. Durley announced there would be meetings at Houstonia on Monday, Oct. 13, and Green Ridge on Tuesday, Oct. 14, both of which will have Morgan M. Moulder as the principal speaker, and at LaMonte on Thursday, Oct. 16, with Gov. Phil Donnelly as the speaker.

In considering the candidates on the ticket for county officers, Henry Salveter pointed out that they are the people in the government which is nearest to the voters. He said that every Democrat could be proud of the ticket presented to the people of Pettis County for their consideration, and that "we can rest assured that all candidates are honest and efficient and entirely capable of handling the duties of the offices for which they were running.

"Every voter, Democrat or Republican, can vote for every man running for a county office on this Democratic ticket, and feel proud that he helped elect such capable men to represent him in the county government," Mr. Salveter concluded.

Moulder To Speak Twice In County During This Week

Congressman Morgan M. Moulder, Democratic candidate seeking re-election, will come to Sedalia this week for a two-day visit in Pettis County. Congressman Moulder completed his plans for the visit Friday when he passed through Sedalia enroute to Marshall.

James E. Durley, county chairman of the Democratic committee, announced Congressman Moulder will give two talks while here, one on Monday night at Houstonia, and the second on Tuesday night at Green Ridge.

The congressman said he hoped to contact many of the voters in Sedalia and the county during his two-day visit.

Scottish Rite Official Speaks For Local Club

Arthur H. Strickland, 33rd degree deputy in Kansas City, Kan., of the Souvereign Guard Inspector General of Kansas, Southern Jurisdiction, Scottish Rite, was the speaker Friday evening at the banquet meeting of the Scottish Rite Club in Sedalia, held at Epworth Methodist Church.

Mr. Strickland spoke on the Scottish Rite which he said was the part of Masonary which rounded out the picture and gave the philosophy of life. There is no secret about the Scottish Rite, he said, for the royal secret most people learned at their mother's knee. It is built around two verses in the Bible, the speaker said, the one which says that in the beginning was God and the one where God said, "Let there be light and there was light." But it was four days after that, the speaker said, that He brought forth the moon and the sun—so the light was something else—if was intellect and reason.

The entire story of Free Masonery, the speaker said, comes from the Great Book that is on the altar. There is only one word lacking, Mr. Strickland said, one word we are searching for, and only one man has ever known that word. He was crucified but He left a record around which the Scottish Rite degrees were created. That record, he said, is the royal secret.

The meeting was presided over by Sidney Swope, president of the Sedalia Scottish Rite Club.

Invocation was given by A. A. Messenger, chaplain.

Edwin Kettlesen, secretary, Kansas City, a former Sedalian, introduced the guests: Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Sherden, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Dearing, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley West, Mr. and Mrs. Russ Gentzler, all of Kansas City, and Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Carter and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Cox of Odessa.

Huss Gentzler, membership chairman, told of the Scottish Rite class that will start in Kansas City on Nov. 11, and will continue four days.

A clever little program by a team calling itself "Two Guys and Their Dolls" was presented by two teen age boys, Jerry and Joe Smith, and two young girls, Marjorie Ann Critten and Judy Thomson. The girls wore identical dresses with black bodices of velvet and skirts of net over satin in coral shade. The boys had on white coats, dark trousers and bow ties. They sang and danced, giving several snappy little numbers that were well received by the large crowd present. The four are students of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Smith, parents of the boys, who conduct the Bruce School of Dance in Kansas City.

The meeting closed with benediction by the chaplain.

Bryant Previews 1953 Chrysler In Kansas City

F. W. Bryant, president of Queen City Motors, Inc., 220 West Second, returned Friday from Kansas City where he attended one of a series of 25 nation-wide meetings being held by Chrysler division of Chrysler Corporation to preview the 1953 Chrysler.

"The new cars are the 'most beautiful Chryslers ever designed'," Mr. Bryant reports. "They feature entirely new and beautiful body styling with long, low lines emphasizing the length and width of the cars."

Mr. Bryant said that many new and outstanding features are incorporated in the 1953 Chrysler in addition to the proven mechanical features such as the revolutionary 180-horsepower V-8 Chrysler firepower engine, full-time power steering, fluid torque drive, power brakes and oriflow.

"These cars, I am sure, will set the new highway fashion for 1953," Mr. Bryant said. "They are the most luxurious cars Chrysler has ever produced and incorporate improvements which assure that they will be 'America's first family of fine cars'."

During the month of October, Chrysler's 3,500 dealers coast-to-coast, will have attended similar meetings and previewed the new 1953 Chrysler.

Relative Of Sedalians Killed In Newfoundland Plane Crash

Lieut. Dewey Allen Ellis Jr., who has a number of relatives in Sedalia and whose mother is a former Florence resident, was killed Monday night in a plane crash in Newfoundland, the family here has been advised.

A Navy patrol bomber pilot, Ellis died when his plane overshot a runway and crashed. Four officers and two enlisted men were also fatally injured in the crash.

The lieutenant's mother, Mrs. Dewey A. Ellis, Kansas City, formerly Doris Reynolds of Florence, said he had been flying weather reconnaissance and patroling in that area since Sept. 15. She said the plane overshot its runway because of an unexpected heavy fog over the field. The plane did not burn.

When Mr. and Mrs. Ellis last visited their son at his home in Lexington Park, Md., in August, Mrs. Ellis said, it was the first time he expressed any misgivings about a mission. He had been in the navy since 1942.

He enlisted in the navy following his graduation from the Paseo High School and one year at the University of Kansas City. He served nine months on a destroyer in the Pacific before his appointment to the naval preparatory academy in Bainbridge, Md.

A year later he was appointed to the Naval academy at Annapolis. He was graduated from there in June, 1948.

Since that time and before his assignment in Newfoundland, he served six months in Malta and six months in French Morocco. He received his flight training at Pensacola, Fla., and Corpus Christi, Tex.

While stationed in the United States, he had lived with his wife, Mrs. Lenora Irene Ellis, and his two children, Claudia Rochelle Ellis and Dewey Allen Ellis III, in Lexington Park.

While attending Annapolis he was the first midshipman to act as captain of the varsity rifle team there for two years.

During his senior year at Paseo High School, Kansas City, Ellis was named the best ROTC captain in the Kansas City high schools.

He was an Eagle Scout and a member of the Mic-O-Say tribe of the Boy Scouts. He was a member of De Molay and the Maywood Baptist Church.

Surviving besides his parents are: an aunt, Mrs. S. E. Walston, Windsor, now living in Sedalia; an uncle, Joe Weaver, Sedalia; four cousins, Mrs. A. A. Owsley, 701 East Tenth, Mrs. Morris McCown, 634 East Broadway, Gerald Weaver, Kansas City, Armand Weaver, Fulton; two sisters, Mrs. Betty Burt, St. Louis, and Miss Marion Ellis, Kansas City, his paternal grandfather, G. W. Ellis of Kansas City, and his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Reynolds, East Lynn, Mo.

His father has been a patrolman for the Kansas City police department the last 32 years.

Burial will be in the Naval cemetery at Annapolis.

Rugens Named United Agents In Pettis Area

Olyn and Ruth Rugen, formerly of Clifton City, now of Sedalia, have been appointed exclusive local representatives for United Farm Agency at Sedalia and surrounding territory, Robert M. Chamberlain, United president, announced today.

United, which operates extensively throughout the West and Middle West, has its home offices in Kansas City, with branch offices in St. Louis, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Chicago, and Springfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Rugen succeed Jack Sayre, former United representative at Sedalia, who has gone to Bolivar to operate in a similar position. Both are natives of the Clifton City community where Mr. Rugen has spent practically all his life farming.

"We feel most fortunate in securing the services of a team with Mr. and Mrs. Rugen's qualifications to represent us in this fine territory," stated Mr. Chamberlain in announcing the appointment. "Such an association will, we feel, be a most beneficial one for themselves, for the community in which they operate, and for our company."

John's Pet Shop a Haven for 'Kids Because He Likes Them and Their Pets

The most popular place in town with the kids after school and on Saturdays is John's Pet Shop — and John VandeKamp, owner, loves to have them gather in his shop. That is one of the main purposes of the shop — he wants the youngsters of the town to get acquainted with the animals.

And the animals like to have them, too, especially Timothy. Tomothy is the monkey whose cage is in the window and Timothy cuts plenty of monkeyshines. He shows his even little teeth in a most ferocious manner as he stares at you with big gray eyes — but Timothy is only bluffing — if he gets a chance he will climb right up your arm and onto your head — you know the expression of someone getting in your hair — well — that is what Timothy likes to do best.

Timothy has lots of friends — people are constantly going in the pet shop just to see Timothy and you never quite know what he is going to do next. With one man who dropped in, Timothy took hold of his shirt pocket and peeked in.

"He's trying to get in my pocket," said the man.

"Yes," laughed John, I'm teaching him to be a pickpocket."

Timothy would probably not be interested in anything he found in a pocket — but he would be interested in a banana, an orange, a bunch of grapes — or a piece of bread.

Just Looks at Turtle

He looked down curiously at a small turtle, but made no attempt to touch it. He made a lot of noise when the puppies in the other window came in for a bit of attention. After all, what attraction could a bunch of sleepy puppies be, thought Timothy, who is certain he is much cuter.

The puppies are cocker spaniels, pekinese, fox terriers, spitz and boxers — but anybody who wants some other kind of dog that is not in stock, John will get it for them.

Odorless Petunia

Then there is Petunia — Petunia has a beautiful black coat with a white stripe down the middle. She is very tame and just looks right back at you as long as you look at her. Petunia isn't just half safe — she is completely safe. She has used the right kind of deodorant.

John would like for all the boys and girls to come in and see Petunia and later he is going to have other wild life creatures. He wants the youngsters to see the animals and know what they are. He is adding to the list later because he has a wild life permit for the purpose of showing these animals in his shop.

Polly Just Dozes

Another interesting pet in the store is Polly, but it must have been nap time, for Polly had nothing to say and just sat on her little perch and dozed.

But the Polly John had before this one was quite a character. All morning long one Saturday she had been talking a blue streak. Then a woman came in and seemed very interested in Polly, but for some reason Polly wasn't interested in her.

"Does the parrot talk?" she asked John.

"Oh, yes", said John — but Polly simply was not going to get involved in a conversation with the woman — she wouldn't say a word.

Finally the woman left and as she went out the door and closed it behind her Polly looked after her and in a loud voice said: "Go to H—", then as if she thought she had done something very smart she just laughed and laughed.

"Parrots haven't any sense", said John, "They just repeat things they hear somebody say—" and maybe that is the reason people too, often do the same thing.

Parakeets Most Popular

The popular birds right now, said John, are the parakeets — beautiful in color and they, too, can be taught to talk.

In another cage are the finches — and although they do not sing, they are gorgeous creatures in bright blues, greens and other colors, some with red bills in contrast to their gay blue or green feathered coats. Some are brown and there is even one white one — and some of them have black bills instead of red bills.

Then, there are the canaries — most of them yellow, but one is pure white — all singing at the top of their little voices. The canaries are all purchased from Sedalia women who raise the birds. That is John's policy — to buy all the pets he can from people of Sedalia and surrounding communities.

Of course it is necessary for him to know the breed. One day recently someone brought in some little pups, but they didn't know what kind of pups they were and John said he just couldn't take them because some people want big dogs and some people want little dogs and he just has to know what kind of dogs the little pups are going to grow into.

Fish There, Too

John has fish, too. Gold fish and tropical fish. Among the tropical fish are the angel fish, zebra with stripes, green sword tails, red sword tails, black mollies, guppies, which have babies at least every two months, and if the babies are not put in another bowl they will eat them all up. There are moons, gold barb, gold danio, pearl gorami and the portalegrenis, which are only about half as big as their name in print.

In the store are plants, rocks, sand, fish bowls, fish food, acquariums and anything needed for fish, dog food, beds, remedies dishes, collars, harnesses, vitamins and anything needed for dogs, bird cages, food, and such for the birds, anything needed for any of the pets — but now Timothy — if you are going to buy Timothy you will have to get his needs at a fruit market.

Why The Pet Shop?

John started the pet shop for several reasons — first, Sedalia has never had a pet shop and John thought it should have. A town this size should have a pet shop, John said. Second, John likes children and they love pets — in fact, John has two youngsters of his own, Johnny, six years, who is in his first year in school, and Mary, 19 months. Little Johnny loves the pet shop — in fact he goes down there with his daddy every morning before he goes to school. Then, third, John loves pets — and if you don't, said John, you had better not start a pet shop because they are a lot of care and they have to be fed on Sunday just the same as any other day of the week.

When John was a youngster he didn't grow up in America, he grew up in the land of windmills and tulips — Holland. John was born in Lisse, Holland, a town of about 8,000 inhabitants, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Pete VandeKamp. There were six children in the family, three boys and three girls. His father was in the bulb business and all the family went into that business, too. They are farmers who raise bulbs exclusively for export to England, France, the Scandinavian countries and formerly Russia — but Russia is off the list at present.

Tells of Holland Life

The bulb farmers are busy right now, said John, putting out their bulbs — because they must make roots before winter. Then in June and July they dig them and the bulbs are sent to the warehouses where they are cleaned, dried, graded and shipped to other countries for fall planting.

The bulb business is a big business and young men go out all over the world from John's father's company and others selling the bulbs, but before they do they are sent to the country where they will sell for a year to learn the language.

Children in the schools of Holland learn French, German and English besides the Dutch language.

It gets fairly cold in Holland, said John, because it is damp there — the country is way below sea level. At one spot where John and his family visited a year ago it was 22 feet below sea level. The water has to be drained out of the canals back into the ocean, John said, and it used to be done by the many, many windmills for which the country became famous. Now it is done by electricity.

Moderate Climate

It is hot there when it gets up to 85, said John, and it doesn't get below zero, but it feels plenty cold and the canals freeze over enough for ice skating. John said he remembered how mad he and the rest of the kids used to get when they would pump the water out of the canals back to the sea right from under the ice and they couldn't skate.

When John was out of college, he came to the United States and for four years traveled here, selling bulbs to seed stores, florists, hardware stores, department stores or whoever wanted to buy them. He would spend six months in this country and then go back to Holland for six months.

It was while he was here on such a trip that Germany invaded Holland and he couldn't get back — so — he came to Sedalia and went into business with Bill Howell to start the Howell Seed Store. After traveling all over the United States, he found he liked Sedalia best. Of course, the fact that Mrs. Howell had a pretty daughter, Ruth Franklin, might have played a small part in the decision to locate in Sedalia.

In 1942 John went in the United States Army and back to Europe where he served 28 months. He got his American citizenship papers while in the army just before he went overseas.

When the war was over he came back to Sedalia to go back in his business with Howell — and to marry Ruth. He has been here ever since, except a year and a half when he was in Moberly with the Howell Seed Company. But John and Ruth and their youngsters wanted to come back to Sedalia and in August of last year they did, and John opened up the pet shop.

So, if you want to see some of the wild little fellows of the woods — such as Petunia —and others that will be added later, if you want to see the puppies and other pets — the fish, the birds, the turtles — and Timothy — John and Timothy will be right there to greet you and show you around. That means anybody — not just the kids — but the kids are particularly welcome.

Native Sedalian Just Back from Germany---

Wilson Hicks Publishes New Book Portraying Newest Field of Journalism; Its Called "Words and Pictures

Wilson Hicks, the Sedalian who at the age of ten decided he wanted to be a journalist and who began his career as a reporter for the Sedalia Capital, has just produced a book that has been labeled an authoritative treatise on pictorial journalism—"Words and Pictures."

The book, published by Harper and Brothers, New York, will soon be on sale in local bookstores. Subtitled "An Introduction to Photo-journalism," it is designed to trace the development of reporting by pictures. It also deals at length with that intangible quality which makes a story-telling picture different from an ordinary snapshot. The realities of producing a photo-magazine like Life are presented with clarity and interest.

Hicks was born in Sedalia in 1897, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John W. Hicks. His sisters, Misses Mayte and Rubye Hicks, twins, live at 1118 West Seventh.

Hicks joined the staff of the Capital as a reporter soon after he graduated from Sedalia High School, at $3 a week, but was soon promoted to $7 a week.

Upon his graduation from the University of Missouri, he joined the staff of the Kansas City Star. A fellow staff member was Ernest Hemingway. He married Ida Elliott Smith and worked in Kansas City until 1927, becoming editor of the Star's rotogravure section.

In 1928 he became executive editor of the Associated Press Feature Service, overseeing the debut of the comic artists Al Capp and Milton Caniff. In 1936 he was invited by Henry Luce to become picture editor of Life and he later became executive editor.

Under his supervision, the photography staff of the magazine jumped from four to 36 photographers, besides the additional ten under contract.

Hicks then resigned and turned to writing books. His first, "This Is Ike," is a pictorial study of the general and his life.

"Words and Pictures," his second book, is dedicated to his wife and deals not with the photographic study of some particular person or place, but with the study of photography itself.

Hicks returned to the United States Saturday after two months spent in Germany under the education program of the Department of State. There he exchanged ideas about photojournalism with German editors, writers and photographers.

In a recent letter to his sisters, Hicks said he could hardly wait to get home again, and now the Misses Hicks are hoping their talented brother will soon return for a visit to Sedalia. At the present time he is with his wife in New York.

Hicks has used that background of experience and obviously extensive research as the basis for "Words and Pictures." His acute perception has enabled him to produce a work which should be must collateral reading for journalism courses generally. Photojournalism is the dominant element primarily of the picture magazines, with their picture stories and picture essays. However, many of the principles involved have their application in almost any publication.

"Words and Pictures," however, will appeal to others than those upon whose profession its various facets shed some light. Foremost among the others to whom it will provide interesting reading are all those who find pleasure in working with the camera and its products. That will include the tyro whose adventures with a camera just are beginning to expand beyond making vacation snapshots and pictures of his baby and his pup. It will embrace, also, those expert amateurs whose works have found approval in salon exhibitions, even in art galleries.

WILSON HICKS, native Sedalian, who has published two new books within the past few months.

It should be noted that Hicks' observations are not concerned with the mechanics of camera and darkroom operation, but primarily with the perceptions and creative ideas that are component elements of truly good photographs. A particularly interesting passage discusses the development and growth of the ideas of the taker-of-pictures-for-pleasure.

Making A Picture Story

Hicks moves into the narrative medium to describe the process by which a picture story is given final form in Life, emerging from stacks of photographs and notes. He gets into it much of the tension involved in the process. The setting is the managing editor's sanctum and the actors in the drama number a surprising fifteen. It scarcely need be said that differences of opinion and some disappointments are involved. Incidentally, the ratio of pictures examined to those published in Life is closely estimated at 35 to 1.

The author makes the observation, with regard to news pictures, that often it is the event which is great and not the picture.

"The picture, when only the camera sees the scene or event," he notes, "may be expected to be superficial. When the photographer sees it and sees it well, the picture has a chance to be penetrating."

Discussing the process of creatively fitting words to pictures, Hicks observes:

"Inherent in the photojournalistic process are two kinds of images, the visual and verbal. The writer is a picturemaker, too. In writing captions . . . . in a picture story, he can create word-pctures to increase the number of images in the combined form and heighten its total effect. Because English, more than most other languages, is a language of similies and metaphors — which is to say, images — it finds itself quite at home in its co-function with the visual medium."

It could be quite possible that the foregoing quoted paragraph gave the author the inspiration for the title of his book.

Photographer Must See Clearly

Another passage carries a suggestion to the photographer:

"The photographer's purpose is to give order to the chaos of forms which is reality. In seeing clearly, and in understanding what is before his camera, he is able to organize, condense and define it so that it will be plain and intelligible in his photograph. To heighten the explanatory value of his picture he calls upon emphasis to assist him. By judicious use of accent and stress with respect to certain forms in the picture, he intensifies the picture's significance and meaning . . . The all-important act of selection is the overt manifestation of the photographer's judgment."

Inescapably, it seems, in any discussion of photographs, someone drags up the cliche, allegedly a Chinese proverb, to the effect that one picture is worth ten thousand words. Apparently everybody knows what the remark is intended to convey so it seldom is questioned. Given a moment's objective consideration, and admitting that circumstances alter cases, the statement disintegrates into little more than chatter. However, it appears in Hick's book in more meaningful words and in a form in which some sage more probably may have uttered it: "One seeing is worth one hundred hearings."

The book is well illustrated with sixty-four pages of photographic reproductions. ost of them are pictures of great merit. All have been selected to emphasize points made in the text.

PRESENTED A NEW RANGE—Mr. and Mrs. Ben E. Moore, 1831 South Barrett were presented a new Chambers Range by O. J. Raffurty, Shelbyville, Ind., a representative of the Chambers Corporation, at a ceremony held at the L & G Electric Co., 119 East Main, Wednesday afternoon. They were awarded the range on the Tom Moore Ladies Fair Program held at the Missouri State Fair last August.

Mr. and Mrs. Moore appeared on the program, with Mrs. Moore being placed in a line with two other ladies. Mr. Moore, blindfolded, was supposed to identify his wife by touching her ears, nose, and ankle. A man was substituted and Mr. Moore guessed the man's ankle as that of his wife. He also had to try to identify his wife's kiss, but he missed on that, too.

Mrs. Moore was presented with a Jefferson Golden Hour clock and Mr. Moore with a pair of Air-flite binoculars. Then Tom told Mr. Moore that since he had been such a good sport, he would let him squirt seltzer water at him. But the gun backfired and Ben Moore was drenched. Then Tom Moore presented the Sedalians with a certificate entitling them to the prize of the day—a Chambers Gas Range.

The L & G Company is the authorized dealer for the Chambers Ranges in this territory.

Mr. Moore is special agent for the Bankers Life Co., of Des Moines, Ia., in Sedalia and Mrs. Moore teaches the fourth grade at Broadway School. (Padgett Photo)

Tractor On The Loose

BURLINGTON, Vt. (AP) — It's often difficult to start a tractor motor on cold mornings but two small sons of U. S. Weather Bureau meteorologist William Conlon did it in a jiffy at the Intervale Jersey Farm on North Avenue, here.

Billy, 5, and Bobby, 3, coached each other to "push that button — move that thing" as they had seen others do.

The tractor came out of the tool shed in third gear, moved down a farm road, swerved to avoid a henhouse, crossed a ditch and went through a fence to get out on the public highway.

The boys jumped and the tractor continued down the road, turned into Institute Road, went through another fence, and over a steep bank without turning over. A neighbor, David Arms, saw the driverless tractor, sprinted and caught it before any serious damage was done.

The word "nerve" originally meant tendon, but now refers to the structures through which the brain sends messages to the body, including much of the brain itself.

Speedy Moore A Pencil Collector, MoPac Booster

That isn't all of Speedy Moore's collection of pencils that he carries stuffed in the pockets of the bib of his overalls as he rushes about the baggage room and around the rest of the Missouri Pacific station. The pencils are as much a part of Speedy as Speedy is a part of the Missouri Pacific in this territory.

Speedy has 75 wooden pencils, some of them sharpened and some of them not. He also has 30 mechanical pencils, but he doesn't carry them around — they are too heavy. Seems like the bunch of wooden pencils would be too heavy, too, but Speedy said they're not—you get used to them.

There are only a few duplications among Speedy's pencils, he carries those so that he can swap if he happens to run across another pencil collector. Pencil collecting isn't so much the rage here, says Speedy, as it is in the west and south, so he doesn't have many people to swap with. However, lots of people who are not pencil collectors remember that Speedy is one and help him add to his collection. He has pencils from many kinds of firms including funeral homes. He has pencils from many different cities and states and he would like to have still more — "Why some people have bushel baskets full," said Speedy. Speedy doesn't have that many — he wishes he did.

Speedy's pencil collection started a number of years ago and he had about 100 pencils collected when somebody swiped them. He was in Warrensburg at the time — and so he had to start all over again, but he seems to be getting along pretty well. He only carries a small part of his collection with him — then every few days he changes and carries another bunch for awhile. Most people don't carry their collections with them and since Speedy likes to do that it is a good thing he picked out something like pencils, instead of maybe old worn out locomotives.

It is a wonder that Speedy doesn't collect locomotives, or engine bells or something about a railroad — that is what he likes best. He has been working for the Missouri Pacific 26 years — the 26th day of last June — and has been messenger, caller, baggage man and baggage helper in Sedalia, Jefferson City and Warrensburg.

Speedy, whose real name is Rudolph J. Moore, didn't start his railroad career with the Missouri Pacific. He started with the Katy and worked there 5½ years at the depot and a year in the office of superintendent of the car department and superintendent of transportation. He started under the late E. F. Hausam Sr., assisant superintendent of the Katy, and worked in the transportation department under O. C. Smith, superintendent of the car service.

On April 1, 1921 Speedy started to work the first time for the Missouri Pacific and worked 3½ years. Then he did first one kind of work and then another until June 1926, when he found the coal dust had gotten in his blood until he just couldn't work at anything else except something about the railroad. He went back to work on the Missouri Pacific — and that's the story — he has been there ever since. G. B. Howden was the assistant superintendent, B. H. Knapp was the chief dispatcher.

Speedy is a familiar sight around the depot and comes in for more than his share of kidding — but Speedy doesn't mind the kidding, he likes it. He just grins and now and then comes back with an answer. The railroad men have a lot of fun with him — and practically everybody in town knows him. He is always a good Missouri-Pacific booster and just before the first of the year likes to hand out the little bill fold size calendars put out by his railroad. We have a feeling that if the Missouri Pacific gave out pencils instead of calendars Speedy wouldn't be near so liberal — no indeed — he would try to stuff all the pencils the company could put out right there in the pockets of the bib of his overalls — yep — Speedy is a top booster for the railroad — but first — he is a pencil collector.

"How do you like playing the clarinet?" a small girl was asked.

"Oh, I like it," said the child with enthusiasm.

"What do you like about it?" she was asked.

The little girl smiled — " like putting it together. I like to lick the reed and I like to set up the music stand."

It is one of those big affairs for a women's club where the women doll up in all their finery and the husbands are invited to be guests.

One Sedalia woman seems to have a husband who made other plans on the very night she wanted him most—the night of the big affair—an announced he wasn't going to be in town.

"But", exclaimed the woman, "What am I going to do? How am I going to get zipped up? I have a new dress and I can't get it zipped up by myself."

The husband offered no solution, and the woman has tried to figure out a way she can get into the dress by herself. She thought of putting it on and zipping it up in front and turning it around—but it ain't that kind of a dress—when you get in it—forward or backward—you are in it just that way and you're stuck—there is no turning it around any—because there is no room to turn.

She has a problem—it's almost grounds for divorce.

Pres. Truman Makes History Campaigning For Stevenson

By Drew Pearson

(Copyright, 1952, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

ABOARD THE PRESIDENT'S TRAIN — Some people have seemed quite surprised to learn that I was aboard Mr. Truman's train. One lady in Utah remarked: "Do you really mean that the Secret Service let you on the train? I should think they would fear for the President's life!"

However, it's very difficult to hate Harry in this, the twilight of his last term. Whether you agree with him or not, you have to admire the courage of a man who, at the age of 68, is up-early-and-out-late making eight to ten speeches a day for a cause he so fervently believes in.

This, I believe, will rate as a history-making trip, and I am glad to be aboard regardless of whether Harry loves-me-or-loves-me-not.

People have become so accustomed to seeing Mr. Truman whistle-stopping round the country that they don't realize just how historic his trip is. Never before in recent history has any outgoing President of the United States gone out and hit the hustings so vigorously for the man who may succeed him.

When Calvin Coolidge was about to step down in favor of Herbert Hoover, he did not lift a finger to help Hoover's election. Calvin stayed in the White House and sulked. When Franklin Roosevelt ran for the first time in 1932, Al Smith, his predecessor in Albany, did not bestir himself. When Teddy Roosevelt was succeeded by Taft in 1908, he worked for Taft, but at nowhere near the pace set by Harry Truman.

Nature's Turnout

No, this trip, averaging eight to ten speeches a day made on behalf of a man who didn't really want Harry to campaign for him, is definitely historic.

And if the folks along the way haven't always realized that history is being made, everything else seems to have turned out in full force to pay tribute to Harry Truman's last transcontinental whistle-stop. Never were the prairies more beautiful, and red peaks of the rockies more majestic, the Herefords of Nebraska sleeker, the aspens of Colorado more yellow, Utah alfalfa greener and Iowa corn more golden than on this farewell to the scrappy, sometimes injudicious President of the United States.

Even the weather, which has not always smiled on Ike Eisenhower, has been kind to Harry. No rain has marred his crowds or dampened his spirits.

As a matter of fact, I don't think anything could dampen Harry's spirits. I have watched General Eisenhower look grim and weary after a few days of speaking. But Truman, aged 68 against the General's 62, not only looks younger than the General, but seems to get younger the more he speaks.

A Changed Truman

It's a somewhat changed Harry Truman, however, that's making this trip. Harry Vaughan, the bemedaled military aide (My Pal) is not along. There isn't a single sign of military brass on the train; no cronies; no poker parties; only a group of young and earnest speechwriters.

This time Harry isn't playing poker, he's playing for keeps. He talks privately about some of the mistakes he's made. He wishes he hadn't made them. He should have fired Howard McGrath months before, he says, and cleaned out the Justice Department so the corruption issue would not have been hung around the Democratic Party's neck.

The President's new seriousness has developed as he has watched the approaching spectre of possible Republican victory in November, and realizes that with it, most of the things he has fought for would vanish.

There was a time when he did not think they would vanish, when he felt the General would continue the basic Truman policies. But for days now, as he has read Ike's speeches, Harry has been approaching a slow boil — a boil which spilled over at Oakland, Calif., and Colorado Springs.

That boil was not over Eisenhower alone. It was directed also at Truman's own mistake at trusting the military. No President in years has put so much faith in the military as Harry Truman; no President has appointed so many generals to top civilian positions. Harry liked them, admired them, even gloried in them. But one by one, they have belied his faith.

Franklin Roosevelt made use of many generals, but he knew how to keep them in their place. Truman, on the other hand, ever since Battery D Days when he was an obscure artillery captain in the Missouri National Guard, has nursed a secret worship of the brass.

So he has surrounded himself with them. One of the first was Gen. Bedell Smith, whom he made Ambassador to Moscow and Head of Central Intelligence, only to have him make a deadly, damaging statement about communists in government at the very heart of the current campaign.

Another was Gen. Al Wedemeyer, whom Truman made Ambassador to China. Truman liked him, trusted him. But Wedemeyer became an active campaigner for Senator Taft.

General MacArthur also had all sorts of enconiums heaped on his head by the President. He was kept in Tokyo against the advice of some State Department officials, and because Truman insisted on it. Then he, too, turned against his commander-in-chief.

Another was Gen. Lucius Clay, who was given civilian control of Germany, a job rightfully belonging to the State Department. But General Clay, a Georgia Democrat, is now a major braintruster for the Republican high command.

However, Eisenhower, Truman thought, would be different. He had driven through the streets of Berlin with Ike, looked up to him, admired him, told him he would help him become President.

Privately Truman was not displeased when Eisenhower won the nomination in Chicago. He was confident foreign policy would remain on a bipartisan, even keel.

But when the General embraced Taft, then Jenner, then McCarthy; and when one-by-one he began to desert the principles he had stood for in Europe, Harry really hit the boiling point.

And when he boiled over, it was not only at Eisenhower, but at Generals in general.

Hey! Whose Side Are You On, Harry?

Hal Boyle's Column —

He Claims He Didn't Campaign Against Chivalry to Women

NEW YORK (AP) —I never said women ought to get up and give their seats to men in a bus, or tip their hats in an elevator whenever a man enters.

These womanly gestures of chivalry toward the new weaker sex certainly wouldn't be inappropriate today, but I have set up no cry for them.

How do such ideas get around anyway? All I did was to point out in a recent essay the obvious fact that as a result of the emancipation of women the clinging vine wife has been replaced by the clinging vine husband.

He just changes places with her. She steers the family bus, spends the money and spanks the kids. He merely sits on the fence, umpires her errors and tells her fondly, "Gee, honey, I'm a lucky man to have a girl like you to lean on. How did you pick me out of all the men in the world? I'm not really so much to look at."

Far from opposing this trend, I said it was a fine thing. Everyone now knows that women are physically more durable, emotionally more stable (I must have read that somewhere), and far tougher-minded than men. Since they now have the freedom to use this greater strength, it is only natural that they should take over the job of running this troubled world. Men thus can relax into the soft clinging vine role their sex plays so often in the vast realm of nature.

In putting down these thoughts I intended only to pay tribute to the woman of the future—a confident herculean figure striding the earth in triumph, one who, like the lady spider, takes the mere male as a luxury and a treat, not a necessity.

But the more a man praises a woman the more she regards him with suspicion. My mail from indignant women has been so heated it almost has to be handled with tongs. A few scorching examples:

"Your mother must have dropped you on your head as a child."

"You. . .you. . .(censored)."

"Why do you hate women, you coward?"

"No real woman wants a clinging vine husband, and you know it."

"If you were my clinging vine husband, I'd pull all your pretty little leaves off—but fast."

"The trouble with all you men is you're jealous—you can't stand competition."

On the other hand, a sensible, elderly widow wrote:

"I read your ad for a clinging vine husband. Where can I get one? Any husband is better than none."

In answer, ladies, I would like to say this: I didn't invent the clinging vine husband. You did.

Many modern women selfishly have tried to turn the equal rights movement into a one-way lane. But it is a two-way street. They handle a man's paycheck, beat him to his favorite barstool, and when he goes to the ballpark to root for his team he is answered with a soprano boo. They desperately insist on being accorded all their ancient courtesies at the same time they grab for all the privileges of the new freedom.

But life just ain't that rewarding. If women crowd a man out of his world, he has only one world to turn to—their old world. He shrivels into the twining vine. I know a fellow who has turned to making quilts as a hobby because, as he says, "It's the only thing I know of that women aren't trying to beat a man at."

Come right down to it, it would be nice to have women tip their hats to you. I'm tired of showing my bald spot, and a little token of respect from their sex these days wouldn't do any man harm.

H-Bomb Could Spell the End Of Playground

By ALDERMAN DUNCAN

Aiken, S. C., Oct. 12 (AP) — Will the billion - dollar H-bomb materials plant near here spell the doom of Aiken as one of the South's foremost and most colorful winter playgrounds?

That's a question of some concern among the many residents who benefit financially from the annual resort business.

Famous for polo and riding to hounds, Aiken suddenly has found itself the capital of the H-bomb country. The Atomic Energy Commission's Savannah River plant, under construction now for a year and a half, is centered in this and an adjoining county.

This once placid community is booming like an old-time eastern mining town after a gold strike. New people are coming in by the thousands. New businesses are coming in by the thousands. New businesses are opening up. Almost everybody seems to be making more money. The unfamiliar bustle is a far cry from what make Aiken attractive to wealthy Northerners.

Whiskey Road, so-named because whiskey haulers used it years ago, long has been a fashionable street address and the hub of the horseback area. Now it is the main route to the bomb plant and dangerous for horses and riders during the morning and afternoon rush hours.

An old fancy grocery business that catered to the bulk of the winter trade no longer is in existence. Most winter residents must go or send to the supermarkets like everybody else.

So far there has been no exodus of the winter folk. Such wellknown racing stables as Greentree and Brookmeade have winter quarters here and plan to continue them, as do other stables and trainers. Long-time winter residents like F. Skiddy von Stade and S. A. Warner Baltazzi of Westbury, L. I., intend to maintain their homes.

"I've been coming to Aiken ever since I was a boy and I expect to keep on doing so," Von Stade says.

The old-timers are getting few, if any, replacements though.

Jews Training Migrants to Be Self Supporting

NEW YORK (AP)—One of Jewry's oldest helping-hand organizations ORT hit a new high on the Jewish New Year in mid-September with 200,000 migrants trained for self-support since the close of World War II.

ORT is the Organization for Rehabilitation Through Training, founded in 1882 in Czarist Russia, to give Jews free industrial training which would enable them to earn their livings in the widespreading industrial movement. Since then it has extended its activities until it girdles the globe.

In World War II, when homeless, jobless DPs began to filter out of European concentration camps, ORT started two schools in New York to give them mechanical training for self support. It established similar schools in every DP camp in Germany and Austria.

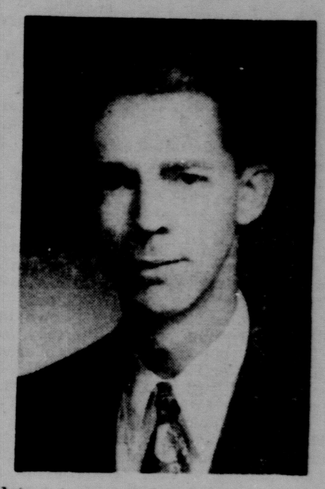
THESE INSTRUCTIONS FOR VOTING ARE PRINTED ON THE BALLOT



"A vote for names of candidates for president and vice-president is a vote for the electors of that party, the names of whom are on file with the secretary of state."

On receipt of his ballot the voter shall forthwith, and without leaving the enclosed space, retire alone to one of the voting booths so provided, and shall prepare his ballot for voting in the following manner: Should the voter desire to vote a "Straight" party ticket he shall place a cross (X) mark in the circle immediately below the party name. If the voter desires to vote for one or more candidates on more than one party ticket, by voting what is commonly called a "split ticket," he may place a cross (X) mark in the circle immediately below one party name and mark cross (X) marks in the squares at the left of the names of candidates on other tickets for whom he wishes to vote.

If the voter desires to vote for one or more candidate whose name or names do not appear on the printed ballot he may do so by drawing a line through the printed name of a candidate for such office and writing below such canceled name the name of the person for whom he desires to vote, and placing a cross mark in the square at the left of such name. The squares so marked shall take precedence over the cross marked in the circle.

Where there are two or more candidates for like office in a group, a cross (X) mark in the square to the left of a candidate's name automatically votes against the candidate whose name appears within the same horizontal lines in the column under the circle in which appears the cross (X) mark unless the voter indicates another candidate to be voted against by drawing a line through such candidate's name. All candidates of the party whose circle is marked shall be counted as voted for excepting where squares are crossed preceding the names of the candidates in other columns. If two or more candidates for the same office are thus designated, neither shall be counted. If the cross (X) is not placed in the circle immediately below the party name at the head of the column, but does appear in the squares opposite the various candidates' names, then only these names shall be counted for, and none other. A cross (X) mark is any line crossing any other line at any angle within the voting space, and no ballot shall be declared void because a cross (X) mark therein is irregular in form. It shall not be lawful to deface or tear a ballot in any manner nor to erase any printed name (except as provided above), figure, word or letter therefrom, nor to erase any mark made thereon by such voter, nor inclose in the folded ballot any other paper or any article. If the voter deface or tear a ballot, or wrongly mark the name or make an erasure therein, he may obtain one additional ballot on returning to the ballot clerk the one so defaced or wrongly marked. A ballot placed in the ballot box without any mark shall not be counted. Ballots shall be counted only for the person for whom the marks thereon are applicable; when a voter shall place a mark against two or more names for the same office, and only one candidate is to be chosen for the office, none of the candidates shall be deemed to have been voted for and the ballots shall not be counted for either such candidate. Before leaving the booth the voter shall fold his ballot in such a manner as to conceal his marks thereon. He shall mark his ballot without undue delay. He shall then hand the ballot to the judge of election selected to take ballots, who shall number the ballot and deposit it in the ballot box. The voter shall quit and leave said enclosed place as soon as possible. (Enacted, 1933.)

You can "write in" a candidate of your choice in any Party Column. When you put an X beside his name you vote for him. The small X beside a name is your vote, the big X in the top circle votes for all the candidates of your party that you do not vote against.

I HAD not known it. I had only known that the telegram Clyde received had been signed by Melvin Fisher. But Ginny must have told Fisher that Miss Hattie had a story to tell.

"You got here ahead of me," Clyde went on. "You slipped in here and buttoned her up."

I shrugged.

"Mrs. Warburton tipped me off," he went on. "Why should she fake pneumonia? To get the Governor in Hydetown a day ahead of schedule. That's why. And why should he get here a day ahead of schedule? Because he was already here, that's why. And why was he already here—"

The girls returned then, and Lucy said, "Oh, let your eye alone, Clyde. It looks all right."

I was already on my feet, saying to Ginny, "How about a dance?" She put down her handbag and we moved to the dance floor. The music was loud. I put my lips close to her ear and whispered, "So it was you who sent for Clyde McDonald?"

She drew her head quickly back.

"It was Mel Fisher," Ginny said. "Oh, I suppose in a way I was responsible. I happened to mention to him that Miss Hattie was so mad at the Governor she was planning to tell something pretty terrible about him, and the first thing I knew Mel called me up and told me Clyde was coming to Hydetown."

"But you arranged for Clyde to stay at your house and talk to Miss Hattie."

"No, that was Mel, too. It was his idea." She smiled at me. "But anyhow, Aunt Hattie changed her mind, and Clyde was furious. Have you ever seen a fat man mad, Roy?" She whistled softly. "He was mad at me, too, because I said it was up to Aunt Hattie to tell him, not me."

When the music stopped I felt that a reminder was necessary and said, "Ginny, we're going to have lots of fun in Washington."

"I'm looking forward to it, Roy." Her hand squeezed mine.

I felt that everything was under control, and back at the table I called the waiter and ordered more setups. He had hardly left the table when Ginny said in an unaffected, conversational tone, "Clyde, where's a good place to live in Washington?"

• • •

MY mouth dropped open. It was a thunderbolt. Clyde said, "Who's going to live in Washington? Not Roy. Not Governor Warburton."

"Oh, yes we are," I said.

"I am too," Ginny said.

The Piedmont Sextet had resumed its music, and I jumped to my feet. "Ginny, let's dance."

"Not this time," Clyde cried. "She's my date." He said it with determination, and got up from his seat in a surge that nearly lost him his balance. He took a firm hold on Ginny's wrist, and his eyes gleamed with a bright light.

I met Ginny's mischievous eyes. She had done it deliberately, I was sure, and her faint, sly smile was confirmation. Clyde asked, "What's this about your going to Washington, Ginny?"

"Isn't it exciting?" Ginny smiled innocently at me. "Roy promised to get me a job."

"Oh, did he?" Clyde scowled at me. "Ginny, I didn't know you wanted a job. I can get you a better job than he can."

"Not with the Vice President of the United States," I said. I was angry. Ginny had put the whole thing on the auction block and was encouraging bids.

Clyde pulled her toward the dance floor, but I caught her other wrist and said. "Ginny, stay here. You can't trust this guy."

Clyde's meaty hand pushed at me and I looked into his angry, squinted eyes. He gave me a shove and my grip was torn loose from Ginny's arm. I reacted as Governor Warburton had, almost by reflex. I took a step backward with my right foot to regain my balance, then I took a step forward with my left foot and let fly with my left in a wild haymaker that caught Clyde on the forehead. It also caught him off balance. He staggered back, struck against a chair, and fell.

I was as surprised as Clyde. I stood staring down at him, and I was not particularly angry. In fact, I felt like laughing, and I did laugh when Lucy said, "Clyde, now you've got mice, you rat."

There was a quick white flash of light, and a moment later I was thrown out of the Route One Casino. It was the heave-ho, metropolitan style. A squad of waiters appeared at my elbow and hustled me toward the door. There was another bright flash, and I recognized the thin man with the camera—the photographer from Ego Magazine. He grinned at me as the waiters pushed me past. At the door, the manager met us, saying, "Has he paid his check?"

Two waiters held me while a third went to manufacture a check, and there by the door Lucy Strawn joined us and began a fierce and loyal argument with the manager. The fat man had hit me first. If anybody was thrown out, it should be the fat man. As this went on the Ego man took another photograph.

• • •

LUCY STRAWN'S pleas were rejected, on the theory that in case of a fight one contender should be eliminated and the other allowed to remain and spend his money. I paid my check and the waiters released me outside the door, where the Ego man stepped up to me and asked, "What was the argument, Mr. Mason?"

"Are you going to print that picture in Ego Magazine?"

"Sure. A little Warburton Day sideline." He grinned.

"With one of those cosmic captions?" Lucy asked. "Public Strikes Back at Clyde McDonald How's that?"

"I'm trying to find out what started it all," the Ego man said. "It was a pretty thing, and I enjoyed it. But why?"

"A dispute over the check," Lucy said.

Bob Thomas In Hollywood—

Starlet Kathleen Crowley Is Grease Monkey for Fun

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Curious hobbies or habits are no novelty in Hollywood, but here's a gal with one so genuine that it sounds like a gimmick but isn't.

Starlet Kathleen Crowley repairs automobiles.

The starlet's unique talent came to light when her car stalled on the 20th Century-Fox lot. She raised the hood and began tinkering with the engine. This brought taunts of "grease monkey!" from nearby males. Marilyn Monroe strolled by and suggested that Kathleen call the maintenance department.

Kathleen did, but before the repair man arrived, she had the motor running. She drove off as the scoffing males stood by in open-mouthed amazement.

The starlet, whose other accomplishments include being Miss New Jersey in the 1949 Miss America contest, explained how she became acquainted with motors.

"I grew up in Green Bank, N.J., a community of about 200 people," she said. "The nearest town was Egg Harbor, 20 miles away. That's where I went to school, and that's where the nearest stores and garage were. If you had trouble with your car in Green Bank, it was a long way to get help. So I learned about motors. ...

"When I started work as a private secretary, my ambition was to have my own car. I saved my salary and lived on what I could make on weekends by picking berries. When I finally got my car, I was determined not to be just another woman driver. So I learned all I could about how to take care of the car."

But Kathleen, a brown-haired Irish beauty, wasn't destined for a life of typing, berry-picking and cleaning out carburetors. She was picked for the annual Miss America contest. While she didn't nab the top crown, she won a scholarship to the American Academy of Dramatic Arts, spawning ground for such stars as Kirk Douglas and Lauren Bacall.

After appearing in a play at the academy, Kathleen drew an offer for a contract at Universal-International. She startled studio boss William Goetz by turning it down. She wanted more seasoning before she tackled the movies.

She got experience at the academy and then in summer stock and on TV. She played the leading role in "A Star Is Born" on the Robert ontgomery show. That and other shows led to a film offer from 20th-Fox. This time she accepted. Now she's playing the lead with Rory Calhoun and Dale Robertson in "The Silver Whip."

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"Here I am carving out an entirely new career in middle age. And all because my wife gave me a guitar for Christmas."

Preston Foster talking. The same guy who has been playing heroes and heavies in movies for two decades. He now confesses to being on the "shady side of my 40s" (okay, so he's 50), and he's doing a great business as a live performer.

"Four years ago, my wife gave me a guitar for Christmas," he explained. "I had fun learning to play it and would sing along to accompany myself. I always thought my wife (actress Sheila Darcy) had a good voice when she sang in the car, so I got her to sing with me.

"We started collecting folk songs by listening to the records of Burl Ives, Susan Reed, Leadbelly and others. We sang them at parties and people seemed to like it. Then I made a picture for Bob Lippert called 'I Shot Jesse James' and was going to San Francisco for the premiere.

"I didn't want to do the usual spiel of 'I hope you enjoy the picture as much as we enjoyed making it.' So my wife and I sang some folk songs. An agent happened to catch our act and offered to book us around the country."

It all started as a lark, but has turned into a highly profitable enterprise for the Fosters. They have just returned from playing such dates as the Wisconsin State Fair and the Portland, Ore., Auto Show.

"We play anything, from concerts to night clubs," the actor remarked. "Sometimes the audiences amaze us. We played a date in Atkinson, Neb., where the population is listed at 1,500. There were 3,500 in our audience."

Foster thanks his movie reputation for the amazing draw. "Even when you stop at a gas station out in the middle of nowhere, you'll find people know you from pictures," he remarked.

"And it's surprising what they remember. One fellow said he'd never forget a scene I did with Paul Muni in 'I Was a Fugitive From a Chain Gang.' I did 1½ day's work in that picture."

It's one of those quirks of Hollywood life that Foster began his career as a singer but never got a chance to sing in the movies.

"I guess I started studying singing from the time my voice changed," he said. "I sang in opera in Chicago. Then I went to New York to find a singing job. After almost starving, I got a job as an actor. My first role on the stage was as a deaf mute Chinese. I decided it was a lot easier being an actor."

Old Coins---

Stop Looking for 1913 Liberty Nickel, All Are Accounted For

"OLD COINS"
By Bill Hert

You can stop looking for the 1913 Liberty Head or "V" nickel, because none got into circulation. Six of these were made, but all are in collections, and the owners value each from $3500 and up.

In 1913, the design of the nickel was changed from the Liberty Head or "V" type, ("V" nickels, so-called because of the large "V" on the reverse, or 'tails' side) to the Buffalo design. In some way, and perhaps at the end of the year 1912, somebody at the mint pressed six of the Liberty Head nickels with the 1913 date. The official mint record, however, does not show these as being struck, but the six found their way to collectors, soon after being struck, and from that date to the present each of these coins has been followed by collectors as they change hands from time to time. The last reported change or sale of one of these coins was in 1949, and it sold for $3750.

Nickels, or five cent pieces, were authorized by an act of Congress in 1866 with coinage beginning the same year. To the present date, there have been four different types or designs coined. The "Shield" type, with a large "5" on the obverse or 'heads' side, was coined from 1866 to 1883 — the Liberty Head or 'V' was made from 1883 to 1912 inclusive — the Buffalo nickel was coined from 1913 to 1938 and in 1938 to our present day, the Jefferson nickels are being coined.

Another interesting story of the Liberty Head nickels is that in their first year, 1883, the design, (on either side of the coin), did not carry the word 'Cents' and many of these were gold plated and passed as $5 gold pieces, being of the same size. In the latter part of the year, however, the design was changed and the word 'Cents' was added to the coin and, contrary to the common belief, the nickel with the word 'Cents' carries or is worth a premium while the one without 'Cents', which many people saved, is only worth a nickel by reason of the fact that not many of the type with 'Cents' were made.

The most valuable date of the entire Liberty Head series is the 1885 and this is worth from $2 to $5, depending upon the condition. Two other dates that command a premium, although not as much as the 1885, are 1884 and 1886.

Next week this column will tell the interesting story of our cents, or pennies, as they are commonly called, from the beginning of the large copper pennies, about the size of a half-dollar, to our present day.

Wealth Yardstick Even In Africa Alters With Times

FORT LAMY, French Equatorial Africa (AP)—Until recently, cattle had a social rather than commercial value in the immense plains country which borders the Sahara Desert on the south. A man got his standing according to the number of cows, horses or camels he had.

But yardsticks are changing, even in the desert. Soon the nomad's standing may be based on the number of cattle he can grow and sell.

The change of seasons always has brought on a great trek of animals—cattle, goats and sheep, camels, horses and donkeys—in this area. In February and March the desert is dry and becoming hotter every day. Vast caravans of animals make their way south traveling 300 to 400 miles. Then, when the rains make the desert bloom with mimosa and grass, the whole mass of men and beasts plods north.

The yearly wanderings have given the nomads bare subsistence. Now airplanes and refrigeration are changing the picture. The cattle are routed to certain spots for slaughter, and the meat is flown down to the continent's meatless forest belt.

A typical development is at Abeche, where Maria Theresa Thalers (coins) are still used and camel caravans come from across the border of Sudan. Here a slaughter house has been built to handle 1,650 head of cattle a month. A hog farm has been added. Soon a cannery will be flown in, to start production for the French Army. A soap factory and tannery also are to be added.

'Ike' Street For Stevenson

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — The folks who live on Eisenhower Avenue like Stevenson 7 to 4.

That was the count among the 13 couples living on the street who would venture an opinion. However, the street is normally Democratic in party affiliation with nine couples being Democrats and only one couple Republican of those who expressed their political allegiance.

One Democrat who crossed party lines indicated his preference by mowing the words, "I Like Ike" into his front lawn. Eisenhower Avenue was named for the general several years ago.

Navy's 'New' Guided Missiles Used During World War II, But Were Quietly Scrapped

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — The story behind the Navy's supposedly new television eye guided missile, used so effectively in Korea, makes one of the most incredible chapters of World War II.

Those on the inside know that the missile is not new at all. It was successfully used against the Japanese for 30 days in 1944. But some of its opponents managed to get it killed.

The result was that much of the equipment, which was being made ready for an all-out missile attack against Japan, was dumped in the ocean. The files were buried. The story behind the project's personnel were disbanded. And it wasn't until after the Korean War started that the work began again.

The Navy's announcement of the missile's success frees this reporter, who has known the astounding details for years, to tell the whole story of the development of this potent weapon. It is a story that rivals the famous Billy Mitchell case of the post-World War I era.

The events that lead up to the Korean missile attack began in 1936. Capt. Robert F. Jones, now planning officer for the Navy's guided missile program, and Capt. Delmer S. Fahrney, now retired and an executive for a large electronics firm, were assigned by the Navy to develop drones as fleet anti-aircraft targets.

They succeeded, and won commendations as a result. Jones was intrigued by the possibilities of the device, and stayed with it afterwards. He began making crude experiments with drones as weapons. He had one of them simulate an attack on a station wagon driving along the beaches of Hawaii.

DRONE PLANE GRAVE awaits this barge-load of missiles, which were being readied for a mass strike against Japan when the program was killed. This load was dumped in the Pacific.

At the start of World War II, Jones and Fahrney went to Capt. Oscar Smith, a top planner on the staff of Adm. Ernest J. King, with their plan to make a weapon out of the drone. Smith saw its possibilities and sold King on the idea.

In approving it, King wrote, "This is one secret weapon which we want to use in force on first employment against the enemy."

"Project Option" was the code name for it, with Smith as its head and Jones and Fahrney helping him.

During the next months, the television eye was added, production started on rather crude wooden missiles and crews were trained. Smith, Jones and Fahrney were convinced the missile would revolutionize warfare. At the peak of the effort, more than 3000 men worked on "project Option" at six bases.

King's goal was to turn thousands of war-weary planes into missiles for an all-out attack on remants of the Jap fleet and mainland.

But opposition in the Navy mounted to the project in direct proportion to its increasing success. In spite of this, Smith got some units out to the Pacific. On July 30, 1944, in a dramatic test on Guadalcanal before the big brass of the Pacific, two missiles blasted giant holes in the Yamazuki Maru, a beached Jap freighter.

The most astonishing part of the whole story is that the official recommendation to King which finally killed the project, prepared by the air staff at Pearl Harbor, was sent on May 29, two months before the test. It read in part:

"There is no present or prospective employment for units of the Special Air Task Force (which it was then called). The active theaters of war are not appropriate places for such experimental development work. This project has absorbed large numbers of highly skilled technical officers and enlisted men.

"It is recommended that all units be decommissioned and that personnel, equipment and facilities not required for experimental development of radio flight control on a reasonable scale be assigned to duty in support of more important components of the program."

This got to King before the favorable reports on the test, which he apparently did not see. The project was junked.

Before the official death notice arrived, however, Jones suspected it was coming. He went to Gen. Claude Larkin, commander of aircraft in th Northern Solomons, with movies of the Guadalcanal test. Larkin told Jones he wanted it. Combat operations began Sept. 27, 1944.

Records of the 46 missiles which were launched include such remarks as "knocked out anti-aircraft emplacements on Fallale Island as ordered . . . obliterated lighthouse at Cape St. George, New Ireland, which was being used by the enemy as a radar tower."

In his official report, Larkin wrote:

"A large number of missiles succeeded in passing through areas of medium to intense anti-aircraft fire . . . the missile is capable of precision attack . . . with minimum risk . . . highly successful technical missions were carried out in an admirable manner."

In a final report to King, Jones and Smith said:

"The effort to get this remarkable weapon into the war in quantity has failed. But the weapon itself has not failed. The opposition stemmed from officers in key positions who did not observe it in combat, who through prejudice or preconceived ideas seem not to appreciate the possibilities of so novel a weapon. Similar objections were raised against the Monitor in 1862."

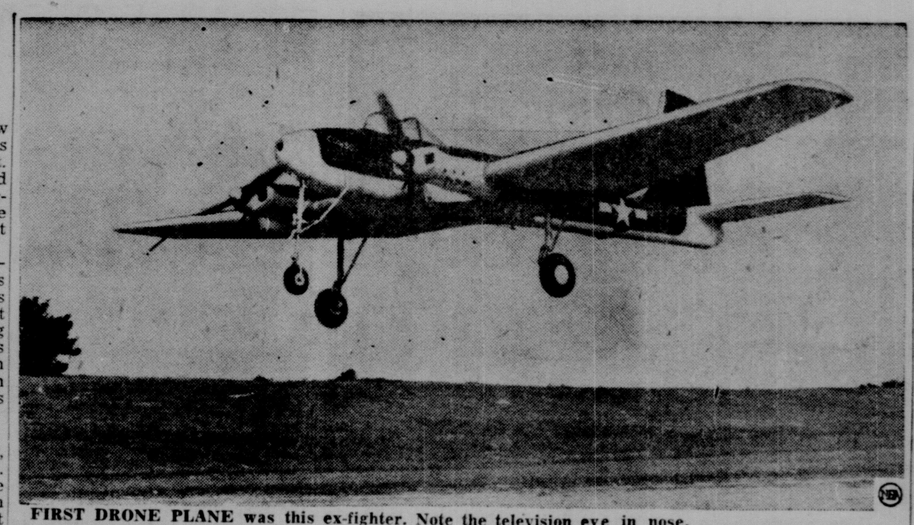
Jones helped to revive the project after the Korean War started. As executive officer of a carrier force off Korea, he felt the need for such a missile. And he sold the planners on its revival.

Between the time the Navy's missile was scrapped and then revived, the services spent $5,000,000,000 trying to develop other types of guided missiles without perfecting any of them enough for use in Korea.

Oscar Smith, looking back on the experience, says:

"The real tragedy of the thing is that the U. S. has lost so much valuable time and experience in the practical use of guided missiles. It takes this kind of use of an operational missile for the development of tactical and strategic doctrine. In the development of any weapon there is no substitute for its actual use. This has been lost.

"Maybe the one we had wasn't as good as some that they say are coming up. But if we had had a chance to continue its development it would have been greatly improved and in the meantime we would have had an operational missile in our arsenal."



FIRST DRONE PLANE was this ex-fighter. Note the television eye in nose.

OSCAR SMITH: Boss of "Project Option."

World Traveler to Present Movies at La Monte School

By Mrs. Earl Horton

LA MONTE — James G. Moseley, author, lecturer and world traveler, will bring his interesting and enlightening program of motion pictures and narration to the La Monte School the afternoon of Oct. 14 at 1:45. The title of his production is "Inside Europe," and was personally produced by Mr. Moseley while he was in Europe last summer. There will be many beautiful scenes from England, the Isle of Capri, Italy, the bombed ruins of Germany and the unusual parts of Holland. The public is invited to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Perkins, who were in Jasper Sunday for the wedding of their son, continued on to Jane, Mo., to visit Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Russell and family. Mrs. Russell accompanied them back to La Monte Monday evening to visit with her mother Mrs. John Little.

Mrs. Edwin Breshears is the leader of the Girl Scouts this year and they meet the second and fourth Thursdays of the month. The 15 girls of the troop had a bake sale Sept. 27 and cleared about $15. The leader of the Brownies is Mrs. Tobe Hardin and she reports that they cleared almost eight dollars at their recent bake sale. The 13 members of the Brownies are: Sharon Wing, Betty Wimer, Emma Kindle, Nina Lesh, Kay Hardin, Sue Horn, Joyce Raney, Rosemary Payne, Linda Files, Sara Lyne, Carol Ann Luster, Carolyn Sue Carlin and Nancy Cripes.

There will be two political rallies at the school in the near future. A Republican rally will be held Oct. 14, and a Democratic rally will be held on Oct. 16, both in the evening.

American Legion Post No. 520 met last Wednesday night in its regular business session. Kenneth Rogers was elected the new adjutant and plans were discussed for coming activities.

After-Hour 'Bottle Clubs' May Be Corked

One State Seeks Way to Dry Up 'Legal' Type of Postwar Speakeasy

By JOHN K. BORLAND
NEA Special Correspondent

HARTFORD, Conn. — A new postwar-type of drinking establishment — the locked-door, after-hour "bottle club" — is giving police in cities all over the nation their toughest time since the speakeasy days of the 1920s.

But while the speakeasies were clearly illegal during the prohibition era, the new bottle clubs present an entirely new wrinkle: they are strictly "legal" in the sense that there are no laws governing them.

They have flourished in many places — New York and Washington are notable examples—but so far nothing has been done about them unless they actually "sell" liquor. Now the state of Connecticut, which finds itself plagued by the bottle clubs, is getting ready to crack down.

State Liquor Commissioner John C. Kelley, a former State Police major who makes licensed bars toe the mark, says he will ask the 1953 state legislature to place the clubs under his agency's jurisdiction. Legislative leaders have promised prompt action. If Kelley's plan works, it may show the way for other states to move in on the clubs.

A bottle club is a regular club in that it has officers and members, each of whom pays around $10 to join and is given a key to the establishment. In Connecticut, for example, the only license cost is a $20 non - stock corporation license from the Secretary of the State's office. With that, plus a room, you're in business. Zoning laws don't interfere as in the case of bars.

Members are supposed to furnish their own liquor, which can be kept there with their number pasted on. Ginger ale and other set-ups, along with ice, are the only items sold.

The club bartender is called the "steward." Juke boxes are often provided but no nickles are required. Charging for such music would mean a license.

Prime attraction for these unorthodox clubs are their "after-hour" activities. While bars and night clubs must close in Connecticut at 1 a.m. weekdays, bottle clubs are just beginning to boom at closing time. And the same goes after 9 p.m. Sundays. Often, they're open around-the-clock although general hours are from 7 p. m. to 5 a. m.

Hartford Police Chief Michael J. Godfrey says the lack of license requirements and their locked - door, curtained-window features make them practically im- "scheme to encourage and foster crime and misdemeanors." In the absence of a law against them, he suggests a "grand jury investigation of the entire situation."

With the bottle clubs put under state supervission, it is believed they will die out. For it will end their after-hour, locked door, and no $800 license status they have been enjoying.

However, even tougher legislation is being proposed by police groups who want the clubs outlawed for good and it is possible the lawmakers may take that course.

Hartford, which has about eight of these clubs, may get around possible to supervise.

"Primarily, bottle clubs are hangouts for undesirables, gamblers, bookies and fringe society." he declares. "While minors aren't permitted in bars, there isn't anything to keep them out of bottle clubs."

Connecticut's highly - regarded State Police Commissioner Edward J. Hickey says his agency has spent thousands of dollars trying to clamp down on such activities, but with little success because of their outside-the-law operations.

"They are nothing but a racket to defeat the liquor control act," he says. "They are the meeting place for all types of criminals, havens for fugitives and too frequently contact places for immoral purposes. And we are practically powerless to do anything about it."

Hartford County's venerable former state's attorney, Hugh M. Alcorn, sees the clubs as a to the subject sooner. The Common Council is strongly considering requiring health and police licenses of the local clubs as a stopgap measure pending action by the Legislature.

"MEMBERS" ONLY is rule of "bottle clubs," where this patron's card is scrutinized at door, just as in speakeasy days.
